[Concluded.]

I was a little frightened as you may suppose; but I thought they were only thieves, who had followed me, and got into the church through my forgetting, in my fright about the tombstone, to fasten the church door; and, as I knew that there was very little in the vestry room, I was rather glad to think how they would be baffled. When they got a light I saw they had masks on. They were well dressed, and although they swore at me, it was evident they were not common burglars; I could tell that from their language. One laid a long shining pair of pistols on the bane which covered the table, out of my reach. I knew that he did it to intimidate me; for he asked me immediately for my keys in a loud voice. It was no use my refusing them; I was quite helpless, and they had nothing to do but to take them out of my hands. I told them that the rector kept all the plates in his house, and that there was nothing in any of the closets but a few bottles of wine, and some wax candles. The oldest man, I think, asked me then where the books were kept; but I would not tell him. I determined that, let them do what they might with me, I would keep to my determination not to tell them where the books were. They tried much to terrify me, with words at first, but finding that did not do, the elder one, who was the principal in everything, put his pistol to my ear, and declared he would ask me three times, and then at the third time, fire. Now I was in great terror at this, and never believed myself so near death as I did then; but I had made a kind of vow to myself, and being in a church, I thought a curse would be upon me if I yielded; so I held my tongue; and when he found I was firm, instead of firing he flung his pistols down upon the table again, and began sullenly to try all the locks he could find about the room, with the keys he had taken from me. In this way he soon found the books he wanted in a fire proof safe.

And now both of them began to pore over the books by the light of the candle. They chose two with yellow covers, which I knew to be the marriage registers—the old one and the new one—containing all the marriages that had taken place at old Chorley church for seventy years back. I heard one ask the other if there was no index; for they did not understand our way of indexing, which was merely to write down all the letters of the alphabet, with the numbers of the pages at which names beginning with each letter could be found—taking the first letter from the bridegroom's name of course. So they had a long search, each of them turning over the leaves of one book and examining it page by page. I watched their faces, and tried to bear in mind at what part of the book they were, in case they should stop. The one that had the old book came to a place at last which seemed to contain what he was looking for. He showed it to his companion, and they conferred together for a moment in a whisper. Immediately after the older one tore out, I thought, some half dozen leaves. He was going to burn them in the flame of the candle at first; but his companion stayed him, and he tore them up and put them in his pockets. As soon as they had done this they turned hastily to depart, as if they were anxious to go now their business was done. The older one took some more cord from his pocket and bound me fast in the great vestry chair, driving the cords round my wrists and ankles till I cried out with pain. Then threatening again to return and blow my brains out if they heard my voice, they went out down the aisle, leaving the vestry room door open. All this happened in little more than an hour; for the clock chimed the two quarters after midnight at this very moment.

I sat there two hours alone; but it seemed to me so long that if I had not heard every quarter chime, I should have expected to see the day dawn through the stained glass window. It was the dreariest two hours that ever I passed in my life. It was bitter cold, and sitting here helplessly in one position, my limbs grew frozen, and the cords seemed to get tighter and tighter, and stop the movement of my blood. It is no wonder I felt nervous after such a scene. Where I sat, with my back to the wall, I looked right into the church, and the door was left open. I could feel a cold wind rushing from it into the room; and, as I sat staring into the darkness, strange fancies troubled me. I saw dark shapes floating about, as I thought, and peeping at me from the sides of the doorway; and now and then I noticed something like little flakes of light moving in the gloomy space beyond. I would have given anything for the power to close the door. I fancied strange noises, and began to think of the people I had known who lay in the vaults just below me or in the graves about the church; and several times a heavy hand seemed to be laid upon my arm again, just in the spot where the man had first seized me. Once I could not persuade myself but that I could hear a low deep tone from the organ; and again the supposed jangling of the bells annoyed me. So I sat listening intently when the whistling of the wind paused out of doors, and hearing and seeing all sorts of strange things, till the chimes went to the quarter after two.

Son after that I saw a little shining light moving about at the bottom of the church. It came nearer to me, and I heard footsteps. I had fancied so many things that I was not sure yet whether I was deceived again, but now I heard some one call—"Abraham Stedman!" Abraham Stedman! three times. It was the rector's voice, and I answered him; but he did not know where I was till I called to him to come to the vestry room. He held up his lamp and was much surprised to find me as I was. I related to him what had happened and he unbound me. He told me he had laid awake since midnight wondering to hear no bells ringing, and had grown uneasy; for he thought I could not have kept my word, and he knew that I was in the church alone. So at last he had determined to come in search of me.

This affair made a great stir in Chorley. But we could get no clue to the parties, nor to their object in mutilating the register. They had taken out so many leaves that it was impossible to tell what particular entry they wished to destroy; but was a curious thing, that on examining the skeleton index, we found that although there were as many as thirty entries in those six leaves every one of them began with three letters. This was a very small clue, and the marriages at that part were many years back, so that no one could ever tell what the names were. It was no wonder that we could go no trace of the two men. Before the next year came round the Chorley people had got something else to talk about; as no one came for a copy of the missing entries in the register, they began to forget about my adventure.

Eighteen months after the night which I was bound in the vestry room, old Mr. Godby sent for me one night, and told me he thought he might yet be able to trace the two strangers.—He had got a copy of a London newspaper, in which there was an advertisement addressed to parish clerks, inquiring for the marriage register of a Mr. MacLean, which took place about thirty years before. The initials of that name was one of three letters; but as the advertisement mentioned no place, that would seem a very small matter to go upon. But I had always thought that the entry which the two strangers had searched for was on the first of the leaves which they tore out, and that it was the other leaves underneath which were torn with it to put us off the scent. Now on the first page we found that there were two entries, both beginning with M.; which was something more.—Besides, Mr. Godby reasoned that a register about which the parties interested were so uncertain, was the very one which, any person knowing of its existence and having an interest in preventing its appearance, might endeavor to destroy. These three reasons seemed to him so good that he went up to London about it, and a day or so after he wrote me to join him. We were soon upon the scent now; for Mr. Godby had ascertained who were the persons likely to be guilty, supposing that we were right in our conjecture, that the missing register concerned this family. When I saw one of them I recognized him immediately, although he had worn a mask in the church. I knew him by his appearance, but when he spoke I could swear that he was the man, and the officer accordingly arrested him. We got such evidence against him afterwards as clearly to prove him guilty. People were hung for such a crime then, and it was with great difficulty that he escaped with transportation. He confessed all about it afterwards, and said his companion had gone abroad since, he did not know whither; and I believe they never caught him. His motive—as you may suppose—was to defraud children of a large property, by destroying the proofs of their legitimacy; by which he was benefited as the next kin of the deceased person; but the lawyers set all to rights again, in spite of the missing register.

ENDURANCE OF HEAT.—The senior of the Buffalo Democracy is an old iron manufacturer, and we observe that he frequently has an interesting article relative to the workers in coal and iron. In one of his last, he states some curious facts relative to the capacity of different nations to endure heat, and how those who sell steam-boats fires in warm weather suffer.

It is remarkable that most of the cases of sun stroke reported, and the eastern papers are filled with them, are of Irish. They yield to the influence of our hot dry climate, sooner than any other European immigrant. Yet, certain kinds of heat they stand better than Americans.

In blast furnaces and rolling mills, the Irish will endure more hard and hot work than the Americans of Ohio, Virginia, and Kentucky, or Indiana.

Yet it is of rare occurrence that an American dies of sun-stroke. The English and the Welsh endure hot work about fire, better than any other people. Sweating does not exhaust them, as it does a Yankee. They will do hard work in a blast furnace in the most sweltering weather of our summers, better even than the negroes. This is the experience of iron masters in Virginia.

There is a business on our lakes that only Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego ought to have been put at; but which the Irish pretty much perform. It is firing up under the boilers of our great steamers. These are down below, in what is called the boiler room. The room is about as well ventilated as a bombshell—the vast heating surface of the boilers makes the atmosphere roasting hot; blowers driven by machinery fan the fire, and when the doors are opened for fresh coal, drive out with rush, flames, sparks, ashes and dust, and the room like Nebuchadnezzar's furnace gets seven times hotter than ever. The fireman crawls on deck for cool air, and there presents literally the spectacle of a man pumping out water from his shoes in his walk, which have filled with his own sweat, streaming down his limbs. The public may be curious to know how long Patrick and Michael stand this work. The poor fellows generally quit the moment the boat reaches her dock; frequently abandoning their hard earned wages. Fresh hands have to be hired every trip. There are no men in the world who can stand the business in the present weather. So severe is it, that we have heard of cases where the firemen had to be driven below to their work, with hand spikes and the fist.

FIRE IN THE WOODS.—We have come recently from Potter county, and have passed through a portion of Alleghany county, in this state. The drought in that section is intense. No rain has fallen for weeks. Streams are dry, springs are dry, and the fields are parched and sere. Thousands and thousands of acres of woodland are on fire, and great destruction of property is taking place. The inhabitants are out fighting the fire, which slowly and resistlessly is moving on to further ruin, and threatening houses and barns. It sweeps over meadows with the speed of the wind, and it licks up the vegetation of forests, leaving the blackness of desolation in its path. By day bright clouds of smoke fill the sky and at night the heavens are aglow with the blaze. The highways often pass between the fires on either side, and travelers are exposed to frequent danger. Fires also are raging in McKean and Warren counties, Penn., in the extensive lumber districts of that wild region.—We heard of single losses of several thousand dollars in standing timber, and of many smaller losses in lumber, shingles, &c. Is it fearful to see a vast section of the country thus given up to destruction? One may ride for forty or fifty miles together, and never be out of sight of the fires that rage in every direction. A drenching rain will put an end to the ravages of this element.—Rochester (N. Y.) American.

DEATH OF AN OLD PIONEER.—Michael Dousman, the patriarch of Mackinac died in this city yesterday afternoon, at the advanced age of 83. Mr. Dousman came here some days since on a visit to his children. He was taken sick on Thursday week, and for the first time in his life, within his recollection, was confined by illness to his bed. It was not supposed, however, that the attack was mortal; but yesterday afternoon he suddenly expired. His disease was an affection of the heart.

Mr. Dousman was one of the oldest pioneers of the north-west. He came to Mackinac in 1791, and has resided there continuously for 63 years. By his prudence, industry and sagacity he had acquired a handsome estate. A wife and six children survive him; four of his sons being prominent citizens of this state.—Mil. Sent.

THE ELECTION IN ST. LOUIS.—By an examination of the St. Louis papers of the day preceding the election, we notice that the issues made between Col. Benton and his opponents were anything but the Nebraska question. On that question, we believe that he would have triumphed. Mr. Polk, the "regular democratic" candidate, never had a ghost of a chance. The Independent and Republican, the whig papers, supported Mr. Kent, a very able and popular man, as a whig, opposed to the policy which had just vetoed the river and harbor bill, and as in favor of rechartering the Missouri Bank, while Benton's opinions were of the hard-money sort. Besides these things, the Anzeiger, a radical German paper, was for Benton, and deemed him to be the "know nothing," who seemed to have organized in strong force in St. Louis.

A NEW WEEKLY PAPER.—A new weekly paper, to be called the "Cosmopolite," independent in politics, is about to be issued in Milwaukee by J. Corbett & Co.

The Daily Gazette.

JANESVILLE : : : WISCONSIN.

MONDAY MORNING, AUG. 14, 1854.

For telegraphic news see third page.

ELECTION IN MISSOURI.—The full vote in Col.

Benton's district is for Kennett 6291, Benton 5226, Polk (Nebraska dem.) 244. The Nebraska issue does not seem to have been fully presented as we supposed, and other questions determined the contest to a great extent. The friends of Col. B. made a hard push for the German vote, and thus arrayed against him the native American and "know nothing" influence. Still we regret the defeat of Col. Benton; he was fully committed against the Nebraska iniquity, and his successful competitor occupies at least an equivocal position upon it. The most that himself or his friends would concede was that he would consent to a restoration of the Missouri restriction, under certain extreme circumstances.

The election to congress of Messrs. Miller and Porter is claimed as pretty certain, and of Messrs. Oliver, Caruthers and Lindley (all whigs) as probable. If this be the result, the democrats elect but one representative, Mr. Johnson.

In the legislature, though the whigs have gained to some extent, its political complexion is yet uncertain.

The riot seems to be at an end. Ten persons were killed, and several of the wounded are not expected to recover.

THE ROCKFORD REPUBLICAN (whig) contains a call signed by a large number of prominent citizens, and addressed to the electors of the first congressional district of Illinois, for a convention to assemble in Rockford on the 30th inst., irrespective of party, "to consult upon the great question now at issue, and to adopt such measures as shall be deemed most efficient for combining our efforts and energies at the approaching congressional and state elections, so as to prevent the still further extension of slavery, and to protect the great interests of free labor and free men from being sacrificed to the interest or ambition of trading politicians." The Republican endorses the movement and urges a full attendance at the convention.

The Rockford endorses the movement and urges a full attendance at the convention. The district is now represented by Mr. Washburne, who voted eighty-three times in succession against the Nebraska bill during its contested passage in the thirty-six hour session of the house of representatives. What truer or better man can be selected to again represent the district?

We notice in the Janesville Gazette an article in defence of the last decision of the supreme court, signed "W.", which we take to be from the pen of our chief justice. We shall be happy to hear Justice Whiton reply through our columns to the article of J. H. Paine & Sons.—Free Democrat.

If the paragraph quoted by us Saturday from the Free Democrat, imputing a lack of courage to the supreme court of this state did not furnish conclusive evidence that Mr. Booth wholly misapprehends the character of the court, nothing further is needed to prove that he mistakes the character of Judge Whiton than to attribute to his pen a newspaper defence of his decision. Judge Whiton did not write the article in question, and does not now know who was its author. We think we can assure Mr. Booth that he will wait a long time before Judge W. responds to his invitation to reply, through his columns, to the argument of the Messrs. Paine.

—By the way, the imputed authorship of the article in our paper is no mean compliment to the actual writer.

RAILROAD MAIL SERVICE.—We learn from Mr. Brodhead, superintendent of the M. & M. railroad, that the compensation offered by the P. O. department for mail service on that road, is as follows: Milton to Janesville, once a day, for six days in the week, $25 per mile—Milwaukee to Madison, twice a day for six days in the week, $20 per mile.—Mil. Sent.

The sentinel does not state whether the offer of the department has been accepted by the postmaster, and we should like to be informed by somebody why a mail is sent twice a day to Madison and only once to Janesville. This is a kind of "service" the propriety of which we don't see clearly.

THE MADISON ARGUS of the 10th says that Mr. Wright, the state superintendent, lies seriously ill at his home in Prairie du Chien. After having spent several weeks, since the adjournment of the legislature, in supervising the publication of the amended school law, with a vast amount of notes and forms, he returned home for a few days, previous to commencing a tour of the state upon the business of his office. He told me he had laid awake since midnight wondering to hear no bells ringing, and had grown uneasy; for he thought I could not have kept my word, and he knew that I was in the church alone. So at last he had determined to come in search of me.

Mr. Dousman was one of the oldest pioneers of the north-west. He came to Mackinac in 1791, and has resided there continuously for 63 years. By his prudence, industry and sagacity he had acquired a handsome estate. A wife and six children survive him; four of his sons being prominent citizens of this state.—Mil. Sent.

STEAMBOAT EXPLOSION AT OSHKOSH.—The Oshkosh Courier states that as the steamboat V. N. Barlow was leaving her place at the dock last Monday morning, one of her boilers exploded, killing two men, a deck hand named Frederick Goor, and a fireman, named Baltzer Geiger, and blowing three persons overboard, one of whom, it is feared, was drowned. The amount of damage done to the boat is not stated. The accident was investigated by a coroner's jury, who returned a verdict that the explosion was in consequence of a defective boiler.

EARLY IN THE FIELD.—The Milledgeville Recorder and the Edenton Press, Georgia papers, nominate Hon. Daniel S. Dickinson for the next Presidency. The Addison, (N. Y.) Democrat seconds the motion.

A CORRECTION!—The Fond du Lac Herald thus corrects an instance of bad spelling in its columns:

In regard to "bad spelling," &c., will the editor of the Union point out a single error in that article, except the word squalid, which is spelled with two "l's."

DETROIT PAPERS describe the harvest of Michigan as one of the best ever known in the state.

HEALTH IN KENOSHA.—Since our last issue, we have had but two fatal cases of cholera.

M. Peterson, who was taken on Saturday evening last, and died on Monday, and Mr. J. Francis, who died yesterday afternoon. Mr. Peterson had just returned from Chicago, where he had been stopping for some time. We have heard of one or two cases during the past week which did not prove fatal. The general health of the city continues good.—Kenosha Tribune, 10th.

THE MARKETS.

JANESVILLE, MONDAY, Aug. 14.

But little grain is yet coming in, as farmers are still busy in securing their crops. The demand for home consumption is however good, and high prices are paid.

The opening prices for to-day are reported to us at

1,056.10 for winter wheat, $041.00 for Canada club,

$063.80 for common spring. Flour, 7.00s to 8.00 per bushel,

Barley, 4.50s to 5.50s; Rye 5.0s to 6.0s; Oats 2.80s to 3.00s; Corn shelled, 40; Wool (little offering) 22s to 30s.

These prices are not likely to be long maintained, without an advance in the foreign market.

MILWAUKEE, SATURDAY, Aug. 12.—The Sentinel reports receipts of new grain better yesterday. Some 5 or 600 bus. of wheat were brought into market, and all inferior club spring at depot brought 1,125, and there were sales from wagons at $061.00. Several loads of good white winter brought 1,20 and we heard of a lot of 600 bus. do. contracted to be delivered in two weeks at

NEW RAILROAD ARRANGEMENT.—To-day the cars on the Madison and Beloit railroad commence running from Afton, (formerly Bass Creek), within six miles of Janesville. The cars leave Afton at 6 o'clock A. M. and 1:30 P. M. By this arrangement we are informed passengers leaving Janesville at 5 A. M. by Davis & Moore's stage coaches, can reach Chicago in time for the noon train over the Michigan Central road, and arrive at Detroit the same evening in time to connect with steamboats to Buffalo. The fare from Janesville to Chicago is $3.00. We are also informed that arrangements are being made and will be soon announced, by which passengers will be ticketed from Janesville over the Beloit and Madison road to all points east of Chicago as cheap as by the route via Milwaukee.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 12th.

A letter was mailed in this city for New York a day or two since, inclosing a check on the Girard bank, Philadelphia, for $600, payable to the order of the firm. Before reaching New York, however, the letter was stolen from the post-office. The check abstracted therefrom, with forged endorsements, was presented at the Girard bank and paid. A suit has been entered by the parties for the recovery of the money.

The steamer Hermann sailed at 12 noon for Southampton and Bremen with 18 passengers and 253,000 in specie.

The Cunard screw steamer Alps also sailed for Liverpool with 250 passengers. The Alps did not take either mails or passengers, but had a large cargo of freight.

HARTFORD, Aug. 12.

The times learns that the extensive satinet mills, known as the Hockamom mills, situated at Rockville, 12 miles east of this city, were entirely destroyed by fire this morning. Loss estimated from $75,000 to $100,000. A considerable portion is covered by insurance.

BOSTON, Aug. 12th.

A meeting of the stockholders of the Vermont Central railroad was held yesterday. The only business of moment that transpired was the appointment of a committee to select a new board of directors, which are to be voted for at the annual meeting of the 12th of September.

The case of the late president, who stands charged with heavy defalcations, is to be brought before the grand jury.

[Concluded.]

I was a little frightened as you may suppose; but I thought they were only thieves, who had followed me, and got into the church through my forgetting, in my flight about the tombstone, to fasten the church door; and, as I knew that there was very little in the vestry room, I was rather glad to think how they would be baffled. When they got a light I saw they had masks on. They were well dressed, and although they swore at me, it was evident they were not common burglars; I could tell that from their language. One laid a long shining pair of pistols on the table that covered the table, out of my reach. I knew that he did it to intimidate me; for he asked me immediately for my keys in a loud voice. It was no use my refusing them; I was quite helpless, and they had nothing to do but to take them out of my hands. I told them that the rector kept all the plates in his house, and that there was nothing, in any of the closets but a few bottles of wine, and some wax candles. The oldest man, I think, asked me then where the books were kept; but I would not tell him. I determined that, let them do what they might with me, I would keep to my determination not to tell them where the books were. They tried much to terrify me, with words at first, but finding that did not do, the elder one, who was the principal in everything, put his pistol to my ear, and declared he would ask me three times, and then at the third time, fire. Now I was in greater terror at this, and never believed myself so near death as I did then; but I had made a kind of vow to myself, and being in a church, I thought a curse would be upon me if I yielded; so I held my tongue; and when he found I was firm, instead of firing he flung his pistols down upon the table again, and began sullenly to try all the locks he could find about the room with the keys he had taken from me. In this way he soon found the books he wanted in a fire proof safe.

And now both of them began to pore over the books by the light of the candle. They chose two with yellow covers, which I knew to be the marriage registers—the old one and the new one—containing all the marriages that had taken place at old Chorley church for seventy years back. I heard one ask the other if there was no index; for they did not understand our way of indexing, which was merely to write down all the letters of the alphabet, with the numbers of the pages at which names beginning with each letter could be found—taking the first letter from the bridegroom's name of course. So they had a long search, each of them turning over the leaves of one book and examining it page by page. I watched their faces, and tried to bear in mind at what part of the book they were, in case they should stop. The one that had the old book came to a place at last which seemed to contain what he was looking for. He showed it to his companion, and they conferred together for a moment in a whisper. Immediately after the older one tore out, I thought, some half dozen leaves. He was going to burn them in the flame of the candle at first; but his companion stayed him, and he tore them up and put them in his pockets. As soon as they had done this they turned hastily to depart, as if they were anxious to be gone now their business was done. The older one took some more cord from his pocket and bound me fast in the great vestry chair, drawing the cords round my wrists and ankles till I cried out with pain. Then threatening again to return and blow my brains out if they heard my voice, they went out down the aisle, leaving the vestry room door open. All this happened in little more than an hour; for the clock chimed the two quarters after midnight at this very moment.

I sat there two hours alone; but it seemed to me so long that if I had not heard every quarter chime, I should have expected to see the day dawn through the stained glass window. It was the dreariest two hours that ever I passed in my life. It was bitter cold, and sitting here helplessly in one position, my limbs grew frozen, and the cords seemed to get tighter and tighter, and stop the movement of my blood. It is no wonder I felt nervous after such a scene. Where I sat, with my back to the wall, I looked right into the church, and the door was left open. I could feel a cold wind rushing from it into the room; and, as I sat staring into the darkness, strange fancies troubled me. I saw dark shapes floating about, as I thought, and peeping at me from the sides of the doorway; and now and then I noticed something like little flakes of light moving in the gloomy space beyond. I would have given anything for the power to close the door. I fancied strange noises, and began to think of the people I had known who lay in the vaults just below me or in the graves about the church; and several times a heavy hand seemed to be laid upon my arm again, just in the spot where the mat had first seized me. Once I could not persuade myself but that I could hear a low deep tone from the organ; and again the supposed jangling of the bells annoyed me. So I sat listening intently when the whistling of the wind paused out of doors, and hearing and seeing all sorts of strange things, till the chimes went to the quarter after two.

Son after that I saw a little shining light moving about at the bottom of the church. It came nearer to me, and I heard footsteps. I had fancied so many things that I was not sure yet whether I was deceived again, but now I heard someone call—"Abraham Stedman! Abraham Stedman!" three times. It was the rector's voice, and I answered him; but he did not know where I was till I called to him to come to the vestry room. He held up his lamp and was much surprised to find me as I was. I related to him what had happened and he unbent me. He told me he had laid awake since midnight wondering to hear no bells ringing, and had grown uneasy; for he thought I could not have fled to keep my word, and he knew that I was in the church alone. So at last he had determined to come in search of me.

This affair made great stir in Chorley. But we could get no clue to the parties, nor to their object in mutilating the register. They had taken out so many leaves that it was impossible to tell what particular entry they wished to destroy; but was a curious thing, that on examining the skeleton index, we found that although there were as many as thirty entries in those six leaves, every one of them began with three letters. This was a very small clue, and the marriages at that part were many years back, so that no one could ever tell what the names were. It was no wonder that we could get no trace of the two men. Before the next year came round the Chorley people had got something else to talk about; as no one came for a copy of the missing entries in the register, they began to forget about my adventure.

Eighteen months after the night which I was bound in the vestry room, old Mr. Godby sent for me one night, and told me he thought he might yet be able to trace the two strangers. He had got a copy of a London newspaper, in which there was an advertisement addressed to parish clerks, inquiring for the marriage register of a Mr. McLean, which took place about thirty years before. The initials of that name was one of three letters; but as the advertisement mentioned no place, that would seem a very small matter to go upon. But I had always thought that the entry which the two strangers had searched for was on the first of the leaves which they tore out, and that it was the other leaves underneath which were torn with it to put us off the scent. Now on the first page we found that there were two entries, both beginning with M.; which was something more. Besides, Mr. Godby reasoned that a register about which the parties interested were so uncertain, was the very one which, any person knowing of its existence and having an interest in preventing its appearance, might endeavor to destroy. These three reasons seemed to him so good that he went up to London about it, and a day or so after he wrote me to join him. We were soon upon the scent now; for Mr. Godby had ascertained who were the persons likely to be guilty, supposing that we were right in our conjecture, that the missing register concerned this family. When I saw one of them I recognized him immediately, although he had worn a mask in the church. I knew him by his appearance, but when he spoke I could swear that he was the man, and the officer accordingly arrested him. We got such evidence against him afterwards as clearly to prove him guilty. People were hung for such a crime then, and it was with great difficulty that he escaped with transportation. He confessed all about it afterwards, and said his companion had gone abroad since, he did not know whither; and I believe they never caught him. His motive—as you may suppose—was to demand children of a property, by destroying the proofs of their legitimacy; by which he was benefited as the next kin of the deceased person; but the lawyers set all to rights again, in spite of the missing register.

ENDURANCE OF HEAT.—The senior of the Buffalo Democracy is an old iron manufacturer, and we observe that he frequently has an interesting article relative to the workers in coal and iron. In one of his late, he states some curious facts relative to the capacity of different nations to endure heat, and how those who feed steam-boats fires in warm weather suffer.

It is remarkable that most of the cases of sun stroke reported, and the eastern papers are filled with them, are of Irish. They yield to the influence of our hot dry climate, sooner than any other European immigrant. Yet, certain kinds of heat they stand better than Americans. In blast furnaces and rolling mills, the Irish will endure more hard and hot work than the Americans of Ohio, Virginia, and Kentucky, or Indiana. Yet it is rare occurrence that an American dies of sun-stroke. The English and the Welsh endure hot work about fire, better than any other people. Sweating does not exhaust them, as it does a Yankee. They will do hard work in a blast furnace in the most sweltering weather of our summers, better even than the negroes. This is the experience of iron masters in Virginia.

There is a business on our lakes that only

Shadrack, Meshach and Abednego ought to have been put at; but which the Irish pretty much perform. It is firing up under the boilers of our great steamers. These are down below, in what is called the boiler room. The room is about as well ventilated as a bombshell—the vast heating surface of the boilers makes the atmosphere roasting hot; blowers driven by machinery fan the fires, and when the doors are opened for fresh coal, drive out with a rush, flames, sparks, ash and dust, and the room like Nebuchadnezzar's furnace gets seven times hotter than ever. The fireman crawls on deck for cool air, and there presents literally the spectacle of a man pumping out water from his shoes in his walk, which have filled with his own sweat, streaming down his limbs. The public may be curious to know how long Patrick and Michael stand this work. The poor fellows generally quit the moment the boat reaches her dock; frequently abandoning their hard earned wages. Fresh hands have to be hired every trip. There are no men in the world who can stand the business in the present weather. So severe is it, that we have heard of cases where the firemen have to be driven below to their work, with hand spikes and the fist.

FIRE IN THE WOODS.—We have come recently from Potter county, and have passed through a portion of Alleghany county, in this state. The drought in that section is intense. No rain has fallen for weeks. Streams are dry, springs are dry, and the fields are parched and sear. Thousands and thousands of acres of woodland are on fire, and great destruction of property is taking place. The inhabitants are out fighting the fire, which slowly and resistlessly is moving on to further ruin, and threatening houses and barns. It sweeps over meadows with the speed of the wind, and it licks up the vegetation of forests, leaving the blackness of desolation in its path. By day huge clouds of smoke fill the sky and at night the heavens are aglow with the blaze. The highways often pass between the fires on either side, and travelers are exposed to frequent danger. Fires also are raging in McKean and Warren counties, Penn., in the extensive lumber districts of that wild region.—By the way, the imputed authorship of the article in our paper is no mean compliment to the actual writer.

RAILROAD MAIL SERVICE.—We learn from Mr. Brodhead, superintendent of the M. & M. railroad, that the compensation offered by the P. O. department for mail service on that road, is as follows: Milton to Janesville, once a day, for six days in the week, $25 per mile—Milwaukee to Madison, twice a day for six days in the week, $50 per mile.—Mil. Sent.

The Sentinel does not state whether the offer of the department has been accepted by the company, and we should like to be informed by somebody why a mail is sent twice a day to Madison and only once to Janesville. This is a kind of "service" the propriety of which we don't see clearly.

THE MADISON ARGUS of the 10th says that Mr. Wright, the state superintendent, lies seriously ill at his home in Prairie du Chien. After having spent several weeks, since the adjournment of the legislature, in supervising the publication of the amended school law, with a vast amount of notes and forms, he returned home for a few days, previous to commencing a tour of the state upon the business of his office. He was there taken sick with a fever, which has confined him to his bed till the present time.

DEATH OF AN OLD PIONEER.—Michael Dousman, the patriarch of Mackinac died in this city yesterday afternoon, at the advanced age of 83. Mr. Dousman came here some days since on a visit to his children. He was taken sick on Thursday week, and for the first time in his life, within his recollection, was confined by illness to his bed. It was not supposed, however, that the attack was mortal; but yesterday afternoon he suddenly expired. His disease was an affection of the heart.

Mr. Dousman was one of the oldest pioneers of the north-west. He came to Mackinac in 1791, and has resided there continuously for 62 years. By his prudence, industry and sagacity he had acquired a handsome estate. A wife and six children survive him; four of his sons being prominent citizens of this state.—Mil. Sent.

THE ELECTION IN ST. LOUIS.—By an examination of the St. Louis papers of the day preceding the election, we notice that the issues made between Col. Benton and his opponents were anything but the Nebraska question. On that question, we believe that he would have triumphed. Mr. Polk, the "regular democratic" candidate, never had a ghost of a chance. The Intelligencer and Republican, the whig papers, supported Mr. Kenton, a very able and popular man, as a whig, opposed to the policy which had just vetoed the river and harbor bill, and as in favor of rechartering the Missouri Bank, while Benton's opinions were of the hard-money sort.—He had got a copy of a London newspaper, in which there was an advertisement addressed to parish clerks, inquiring for the marriage register of a Mr. McLean, which took place about thirty years before. The initials of that name was one of three letters; but as the advertisement mentioned no place, that would seem a very small matter to go upon. EARLY IN THE FIELD.—The Milledgeville Recorder and the Edenton Press, Georgia papers, nominate Hon. Daniel S. Dickinson for the next Presidency. The Addison, (N. Y.) Democrat seconds the motion.

ELECTION IN MISSOURI.—The full vote in Col. Benton's district is for Kenneth 6291, Benton 5226, Polk (Nebraska dem.) 241. The Nebraska issue does not seem to have been as fully presented as we supposed, and other questions determined the contest to a great extent. The friends of Col. B. made a hard push for the German vote, and thus arrayed against him the native American and "know nothing" influence. Still we regret the defeat of Col. Benton; he was fully committed against the Nebraska iniquity, and his successful competitor occupies at least an equivalent position upon it. The most that himself or his friends would concede was that he would consent to a restoration of the Missouri restriction, under certain extreme circumstances.

The election to congress of Messrs. Miller and Porter is claimed as pretty certain, and of Messrs. Oliver, Caruthers and Lindley (all whigs) as probable. If this be the result, the democrats lose one representative, Mr. Johnson.

In the legislature, though the whigs have gained to some extent, its political complexion is yet uncertain.

The riot seems to be at an end. Ten persons were killed, and several of the wounded are not expected to recover.

THE ROCKFORD REPUBLICAN (WHIG).—The Rockford Republican (whig) contains a call signed by a large number of prominent citizens, and addressed to the electors of the first congressional district of Illinois, for a convention to assemble in Rockford on the 30th inst., irrespective of party, "to consult upon the great question now at issue, and to adopt such measures as shall be deemed most efficient for combining our efforts and energies at the approaching congressional and state elections, so as to prevent the still further extension of slavery, and to protect the great interests of free labor and free men from being sacrificed to the interest or ambition of trading politicians."

The Republican endorses the movement and urges a full attendance at the convention. The district is now represented by Mr. Washburne, who voted eighty-three times in succession against the Nebraska bill during its contested passage in the thirty-six hour session of the house of representatives. What truer or better man can be selected to again represent the district?

We notice in the Janesville Gazette an article in defence of the last decision of the supreme court, signed "W." which we take to be from the pen of our chief justice. We shall be happy to hear Justice Whiton reply through our columns to the article of J. H. Palme & Sons.—Free Democrat.

If the paragraph quoted by us Saturday from the Free Democrat, imputing a lack of courage to the supreme court of this state did not furnish conclusive evidence that Mr. Booth wholly misapprehends the character of the court, nothing further is needed to prove that he mistakes the character of Judge Whiton than to attribute to his pen a newspaper defence of his decision. Judge Whiton did not write the article in question, and does not now know who was its author.

We think we can assure Mr. Booth that he will wait a long time before Judge W. responds to his invitation to reply, through his columns, to the argument of the Mosse, Palme & Sons.

—By the way, the imputed authorship of the article in our paper is no mean compliment to the actual writer.

NEW GOVERNOR OF NEBRASKA.—The president has tendered the appointment of governor of Nebraska to F. Burt, of S. C., a brother of Gen. A. Burt, a member of congress from that state. Nobody but a resident of a slave state can, of course, be appointed governor of a free territory by President Pierce.

STEAMBOAT EXPLOSION AT OSHKOSH.—The Oshkosh Courier states that as the steamboat V. N. Bowles was leaving her place at the dock last Monday morning, one of her boilers exploded, killing two men, a man named Frederick Goor, and a fireman, named Baltzer Geiger, and blowing three persons overboard, one of whom, it is feared, was drowned. The amount of damage done to the boat is not stated. The accident was investigated by a coroner's jury, who returned a verdict that the explosion was in consequence of a defective boiler.

DETROIT PAPERS DESCRIBE THE HARVEST OF MICHIGAN.—The Detroit papers describe the harvest of Michigan as one of the best ever known in the state.

HEALTH IN KENOSHA.—Since our last issue, we have had but two fatal cases of cholera. M. Peterson, who was taken on Saturday evening last, and died on Monday, and Mr. J. Francis, who died yesterday afternoon. Mr. Peterson had just returned from Chicago, where he had been stopping for some time. We have heard of one or two cases during the past week which did not prove fatal. The general health of the city continues good.—Kenosha Tribune, 10th.

NEW WEEKLY PAPER.—A new weekly paper, to be called the "Cosmopolitan," independent in politics, is about to be issued in Milwaukee by J. Corbett & Co.

THE GRANT COUNTY HERALD.—The Grant County Herald gives a very good illustration of the fear among owners of real estate in the west to put a selling price upon their property. Nothing is more common than to sell, and yet nothing is more difficult to get them to a sticking price. Let a purchaser come up to their terms, and they become alarmed that they are under value, and an advance is asked for. If this advance is accorded, the chances, in many cases, are that some excuse will be found to delay or break up the bargain. The reason is obvious: Many of those willing to sell, purchased when their land was wild, and all the improvements put upon it have been the result of years of labor and privation, or it has been purchased on speculation, and the constantly increasing value renders it difficult to affix a present price. But to the illustration of the Herald:

"A Mr. S., residing in Fennimore, was anxious to sell his farm last fall at $800. In the spring he raised to $1200, when a man came along and without knowing his price offered him $1500. Mr. S. got alarmed, and asked $3000, but the stranger would not give more $2000. Mr. S. now fears some one will offer him $3000, and so hesitates to offer to sell at less than $400."

CHEAP CLOTHING.—Very few persons think when they are cheapening some article of clothing made by female labor, or congratulating themselves on the low prices at which they have obtained it, at whose expense they are benefited.

The Albany Knickerbocker gives an insight into the matter, by disclosing the rate of wages paid females in that city, where probably as good a price is paid for that kind of labor as elsewhere in large manufactories. It says there are about two thousand girls in that city who obtain their scanty support from working with their needles. Many of them are employed in fur shops, where they can only by the hardest working and most intense application, make two dollars or two dollars and twenty-five cents per week.

KIER'S ROCK OIL, FROM a Well 400 feet deep, near Pittsburgh, Pa., offered to the public as a Natural Medicine of no common value. In a different thing from the old Kentucky or American Oil, as this is made INNATELY as well as externally. At its lowest retail price, Piles, Rheumatism, Deafness, Loss of Sight, Burns, &c.—also, as a valuable Internal Remedy for Piles, Ague, Scrofula, Coughs, Diarrhea, Kynipsis, old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Female Diseases, Worms, Bladder and Kidneys, Bronchitis, Pains &c., &c., it invites the investigating Physician, as well as the suffering patient, to become acquainted with it.

Discovered in 1849, it has within 2 or 3 years, made multitudes of cures, and multitudes of friends—and as soon as tried the Sales not only increase but hold out.

Testimony to its great merit is constantly accumulating in the hands of the proprietor by certificates, letters, and in other ways.

IT DOCTORS THE WHOLE MAN—Flesh and Blood—skin and bones—from head to foot—how it acts upon the system—upon diseases of different manifestations, we cannot tell you. While it is both cathartic and astringent, it is Alternative, and is a true RUBRICATOR. A leading principle in it is Nocturnal. When you once have it in the family you will not be without it.

Ful. the world is of Patent Medicines—it is thought not best to suppress this, the work of NATURE—to make room for Human inventions. Price 50 cents per bottle. It can be had of wholesalers at the large cities and towns in the West at Proprietor's prices.

HAVE WE AGAIN AMONG US those awful spoult every hour in the absence of the favor of Heaven, you of Ague or Diarrhea?—Our Physicians, Druggists and all friends of the afflicted, will do well to recommend this Oil for PROLAPSIUS UTERI, and good will be done—take the usual dose 2 or 3 times a day, and bathe the lower part of the back with it. Have you SCROFULA? The Petroleum will eradicate it root and branch at little cost or inconvenience. Get circulars of directions for men and children, gratifying to the eye—it is all we ask. Mind and get the right kind—it is of a beautiful reddish color and clear. Try it for Piles.

EMPIRE CASH STORE!

The Cheapest Store in the County.

THE LARGEST, Most General and Best Selected Stock of MERCHANTISE ever introduced to the people of this country—now to be found in no other place than at the EMPIRE CASH STORE. A Stock larger than any Two Stores in Janesville to be held for CASH, at prices that all can see are at least 25 per cent lower than the PRETENDED CASH STORES SELL FOR.

We mean what we say exactly: We can sell you

MORE GOODS FOR THE

Least amount of Money Than any other store in the county. Furthermore we sell more Goods than any Two Stores in the County, and this year we intend to sell them at any three, consequently we sell just one-third cheaper, as our expenses are no more by selling so much than they would be if we not sell any more than our neighbors.

Reduce The Price and Increase the Speed In the course of this day, in order to do so, we have purchased many articles larger than ever, and intend to sell at prices to astonish every body.

We buy Goods to SELL, and intend everybody shall understand this by our prices. We have purchased every thing by the Cord in the way of Merchandise. Our Stock embraces every thing in the Goods line, kept in such a store as ours only, commencing with

DRY GOODS, GROCERIES, CROCKERY, HARDWARE in connection with a general STOVE TRADE.

READY-MADE CLOTHING, BOOTS and SHOES, HATS, CAPS, etc., RIBBONS and CAPS, &c., &c.

Everything which would be impossible, (any one seeing our stock will be assured of that).

RAILROAD STORE!

THE DAILY GAZETTE.

NEW RAILROAD ARRANGEMENT.—To-day the cars on the Madison and Beloit railroad commence running from Afton, (formerly Bass Creek,) within six miles of Janesville. The cars leave Afton at 6 o'clock A. M. and 1.30 P. M. By this arrangement we are informed passengers leaving Janesville at 5 A. M. by Davis & Moore's stage coaches, can reach Chicago in time for the noon train over the Michigan Central road, and arrive at Detroit the same evening in time to connect with steamboats to Buffalo. The fare from Janesville to Chicago is $3.00. We are also informed that arrangements are being made and will be soon announced, by which passengers will be ticketed from Janesville over the Beloit and Madison road to all points east of Chicago as cheap as by the route via Milwaukee.

A notice from the Monroe Sentinel of Holden, Kemp & Co., got separated in Saturday's paper from a couple of lines which were intended to introduce it. It will answer just as well if the purchaser will call on these dealers and have them "put up" the article the Sentinel designed to command to the public.

SHANGHAI.—Give us docking or Mexican game for the spit—a bantum to crow—a turkey to roast, and guinea fowls for eggs, and we will give up all other fowl fancied to those who choose to indulge in them. "Cock-a-doodle-doo," was the good old fashioned smart crow of the roosters in the days of our boyhood—the insupportable, "Come-and-f-e-e-d-m-c-o-r-e," of the Shanghai, is doleful enough to announce the funeral of a corn crib.

The negro was made for slavery, as the ox and the horse were made for servitude, and neither of them can be converted into a white man.—Washington Sentinel.

It may be impossible to convert a horse into a white man, but we think it now clearly demonstrated that a white man can make an ass of himself.

TO RENT.—A small and pleasant room suitable for a Physician's office. Enquire of Holden, Kemp & Co. J. D. REED.

From Dickens' Household Words.
A LENS from the Parish Register.

[Concluded.]

I was a little frightened as you may suppose; but I thought they were only thieves, who had followed me, and got into the church through my forgetting, in my flight about the tombstone, to fasten the church door; and, as I knew that there was very little in the vestry room, I was rather glad to think how they would be buffeted. When they got a light I saw they had masks on. They were well dressed, and although they swore at me, it was evident they were not common burglars; I could tell that from their language. One laid a long shining pair of pistols on the baize that covered the table, out of my reach. I knew that he did it to intimidate me; for he asked me immediately for my keys in a loud voice. It was no use my refusing them; I was quite helpless, and they had nothing to do but to take them out of my hands. I told them that the rector kept all the plate in his house, and that there was nothing in any of the closets but a few bottles of wine, and some wax candles. The oldest man, I think, asked me then where the books were kept; but I would not tell him. I determined that, let them do what they might with me, I would keep to my determination not to tell them where the books were. They tried much to terrify me, with words at first, but finding that did not do, the elder one, who was the principal in everything, put his pistol to my ear, and declared he would ask me three times, and then at the third time, fire. Now I was in great terror to this, and never believed myself so near death as I did then; but I had made a kind of vow to myself, and being in a church, I thought a curse would be upon me if I yielded; so I held my tongue; and when he found I was firm, instead of firing his pistols down upon the table again, and began suddenly to try all the locks he could find about the room, with the keys he had taken from me. In this way he soon found the books he wanted in a fire proof safe.

And now both of them began to pore over the books by the light of the candle. They chose two with yellow covers, which I knew to be the marriage registers—the old one and the new one—containing all the marriages that had taken place at old Chorley church for seventy years back. I heard one ask the other if there was no index; for they did not understand our way of indexing, which was merely to write down all the letters of the alphabet, with the numbers of the pages at which names beginning with each letter could be found—taking the first letter from the bridegroom's name of course. So they had a long search, each of them turning over the leaves of one book and examining it page by page. I watched their faces, and tried to bear in mind at what part of the book they were, in case they should stop. The one that had the old book came to a place at last which seemed to contain what he was looking for. He showed it to his companion, and they conferred together for a moment in a whisper. Immediately after the older one tore out, I thought, some half dozen leaves. He was going to burn them in the flame of the candle at first; but his companion stayed him, and he tore them up and put them in his pockets. As soon as they had done this they turned hastily to depart, as if they were anxious to be gone now their business was done. The older one took some more cord from his pocket and bound me fast in the great vestry chair, drawing the cords round my wrists and ankles till I cried out with pain. Then threatening again to return and blow my brains out if they heard my voice, they went out down the aisle, leaving the vestry room door open. All this happened in little more than an hour; for the clock chimed the two quarters after midnight at this very moment.

I sat there two hours alone; but it seemed to me so long that if I had not heard every quarter chime, I should have expected to see the day dawn through the stained glass window. It was the dreariest two hours that ever I passed in my life. It was bitter cold, and sitting here helplessly in one position, my limbs grew frozen, and the cords seemed to get tighter and tighter, and stop the movement of my blood. It is no wonder I felt nervous after such a scene. Where I sat, with my back to the wall, I looked right into the church, and the door was left open. I could feel a cold wind rushing from it into the room; and, as I sat staring into the darkness, strange fancies troubled me. I saw dark shapes floating about, as I thought; and peeping at me from the sides of the doorway; and now and then I noticed something like little flakes of light moving in the gloomy space beyond. I would have given anything for the power to close the door. I fancied strange noises, and began to think of the people I had known who lay in the vaults just below me or in the graves about the church; and several times a heavy hand seemed to be laid upon my arm again, just in the spot where the man had first seized me. Once I could not persuade myself but that I could hear a low deep tone from the organ; and again the supposed jangling of bells annoyed me. So I sat listening intently when the whistling of the wind paused out of doors, and hearing and seeing all sorts of strange things, till the chimes went to the quarter after two.

Son after that I saw a little shining light moving about at the bottom of the church. It came nearer to me, and I heard footsteps. I had fancied so many things that I was not sure yet whether I was deceived again, but now I heard some one call—"Abraham Stedman! Abraham Stedman!" three times. It was the rector's voice, and I answered him; but he did not know where I was till I called to him to come to the vestry room. He held up his lamp and was much surprised to find me as I was. I related to him what had happened and he rebounded me. He told me he had laid awake since midnight wondering to hear no bell ringing, and had grown uneasy; for he thought I could not have failed to keep my word, and he knew that I was in the church alone. So at last he had determined to come in search of me.

Mr. Dousman was one of the oldest pioneers of the north-west. He came to Mackinac in 1791, and has resided there continuously for 63 years. By his prudence, industry and sagacity he had acquired a handsome estate. A wife and six children survive him; four of his sons being prominent citizens of this state.—Mil. Sent.

THE ELECTION IN ST. LOUIS.—By an examination of the St. Louis papers of the day preceding the election, we notice that the issues made between Col. Benton and his opponents were anything but the Nebraska question. On that question we believe that he would have triumphed. Mr. Polk, the "regular democratic" candidate, never had a ghost of a chance. The intelligent and Republican, the whig papers, supported Mr. Kennett, a very able and popular man, as a whig, opposed to the policy which had just vetoed the river and harbor bill, and as in favor of chartering the Missouri Bank, while Benton's opinions were of the hard-money sort. Besides these things, the Anzeiger, a radical German paper, was for Benton, and teemed with abuse of the "know nothings," who seem to have organized in strong force in St. Louis.

A new weekly paper, to be called the "Cosmopolite," independent in politics, is about to be issued in Milwaukee by J. Corbett & Co.

gers had searched for was on the first of the leaves which they tore out, and that it was the other leaves underneath which were torn with it to put us off the scent. Now on the first page we found that there were two entries, both beginning with M.; which was something more.—Besides, Mr. Godby reasoned that a register about which the parties interested were so uncertain, was the very one which, any person knowing of its existence and having an interest in preventing its appearance, might endeavor to destroy. These three reasons seemed to him so good that he went up to London about it, and a day or so after he wrote me to join him. We were soon upon the scene now; for Mr. Godby had ascertained who were the persons likely to be guilty, supposing that we were right in our conjecture, that the missing register concerned this family. When I saw one of them I recognized him immediately, although he had worn a mask in the church. I knew him by his appearance, but when he spoke I could swear that he was the man, and the officer accordingly arrested him. We got such evidence against him afterwards as clearly to prove him guilty. People were living for such a while then, and it was with great difficulty that he escaped with transportation. He confessed all about it afterwards, and said his companion had gone abroad since he did not know whether; and I believe they never caught him. His motive—as you may suppose—was to defraud children of a large property, by destroying the proofs of their legitimacy; by which he was benefitted as the next kin of the deceased person; but the lawyers set all to rights again, in spite of the missing register.

ENDURANCE OF HEAT.—The senior of the Buffalo Democracy is an old iron manufacturer, and we observe that he frequently has an interesting article relative to the workers in coal and iron. In one of his last, he states some curious facts relative to the capacity of different nations to endure heat, and how those who feed steam-boats fires in warm weather, suffer.

It is remarkable that most of the cases of sun stroke reported, and the eastern papers are filled with them, are of Irish. They yield to the influence of our hot dry climate, sooner than any other European immigrant. Yet, certain kinds of heat stand better than Americans.

In blast furnaces and rolling mills, the Irish will endure more heat and hot work than the Americans of Ohio, Virginia, and Kentucky, or Indiana. Yet it is rare occurrence that an American of Ohio, Virginia, and Kentucky, or Indiana.

THE DAILY GAZETTE.

NEW RAILROAD ARRANGEMENT.—To-day the cars on the Madison and Beloit railroad commence running from Afton, (formerly Bass Creek), within six miles of Janesville. The cars leave Afton at 6 o'clock A. M. and 1:30 P. M. By this arrangement we are informed passengers leaving Janesville at 5 A. M. by Davis & Moore's stage coaches, can reach Chicago in time for the noon train over the Michigan Central road, and arrive at Detroit the same evening in time to connect with steamboats to Buffalo. The fare from Janesville to Chicago is $3.00. We are also informed that arrangements are being made and will be soon announced, by which passengers will be ticketed from Janesville over the Beloit and Madison road to all points east of Chicago as cheap as by the route via Milwaukee.

A notice from the Monroe Sentinel of Holden, Kemp & Co., got separated in Saturday's paper from a couple of lines which were intended to introduce it. It will answer just as well if the purchaser will call on these dealers and have them "put up" the articles the Sentinel designed to command to the public.

SHANGHAI.—Give us docking or Mexican game for the spit—a banbury to cove—a turkey to roast, and guinea fowls for eggs, and we will give up all other fowl fancies to those who choose to indulge in them. "Cock-a-dood-e-doo," was the good old fashioned smart crow of the roosters in the days of our boyhood—the insuperable, "Come-and-fall-down-m-e-m-e-r-e," of the Shanghai, is doleful enough to announce the funeral of a corn crib.

The negro was made for slavery, as the ox and the horse were made for servitude, and neither of them can be converted into a white man.—Washington Sentinel.

It may be impossible to convert a horse into a white man, but we think it now clearly demonstrated that a white man can make an ass of himself.

TO RENT.—A small and pleasant room suitable for a Physician's office. Enquire of J. D. RENFROW.

[Concluded.]

I was a little frightened as you may suppose; but I thought they were only thieves, who had followed me, and got into the church through my forgetting, in my flight about the tombstone, to fasten the church door; and, as I knew that there was very little in the vestry room, I was rather glad to think how they would be baffled. When they got a light I saw they had masks on. They were well dressed, and although they swore at me, it was evident they were not common burglars; I could tell that from their language. One laid a long shining pair of pistols on the baize that covered the table, out of my reach. I know that he did it to intimidate me; for he asked me immediately for my keys in a loud voice. It was no use my refusing them; I was quite helpless, and they had nothing to do but to take them out of my hands. I told them that the rector kept all the plate in his house, and that there was nothing, in any of the closets but a few bottles of wine, and some wax candles. The oldest man, I think, asked me then where the books were kept; but I would not tell him. I determined that, let them do what they might with me, I would keep to my determination not to tell them where the books were. They tried much to terrify me, with words at first, but finding that did not do, the elder one, who was the principal in everything, put his pistol to my ear, and declared he would ask me three times, and then at the third time, fire. Now I was in great terror at this, and never believed myself so near death as I did then; but I had made a kind of vow to myself, and being in a church, I thought a curse would be upon me if I yielded; so I held my tongue; and when he found I was firm, instead of firing he hung his pistols down upon the table again, and began silently to try all the locks he could find about the room with the keys he had taken from me. In this way he soon found the books he wanted in a fire proof safe.

And now both of them began to pore over the books by the light of the candle. They chose two with yellow covers, which I knew to be the marriage registers—the old one and the new one—containing all the marriages that had taken place at old Chorley church for seventy years back. I heard one ask the other if there was no index; for they did not understand our way of indexing, which was merely to write down all the letters of the alphabet, with the numbers of the pages at which names beginning with each letter could be found—taking the first letter from the bridegroom's name of course. So they had a long search, each of the turning over the leaves of one book and examining it page by page. I watched their faces, and tried to bear in mind at what part of the book they were, in case they should stop. The one that had the old book came to a place at last which seemed to contain what he was looking for. He showed it to his companion, and they conferred together for a moment in a whisper. Immediately after the older one tore out, I thought, some half dozen leaves. He was going to burn them in the flame of the candle at first; but his companion stayed him, and he tore them up and put them in his pockets. As soon as they had done this they turned hastily to depart, as if they were anxious to be gone now their business was done. The older one took some more cord from his pocket and bound me fast in the great vestry chair, drawing the cords round my wrists and ankles till I cried out with pain. Then threatening again to return and blow my brains out if they heard my voice, they went out down the aisle, leaving the vestry room door open. All this happened in little more than an hour; for the clock chimed the two quarters after midnight at very moment.

I sat there two hours alone; but it seemed to me so long; that if I had not heard every quarter chime, I should have expected to see the day dawn through the stained glass window. It was the dreariest two hours that ever I passed in my life. It was bitter cold, and sitting here helplessly in one position, my limbs grew frozen, and the cords seemed to get tighter and tighter, and stop the movement of my blood. It is no wonder I felt nervous after such a scene. Where I sat, with my back to the wall, I looked right into the church, and the door was left open. I could feel a cold wind rushing from it into the room; and, as I sat staring into the darkness, strange fancies troubled me. I saw dark shapes floating about, as I thought, and peeping at me from the sides of the doorway; and now, and then I noticed something like little flakes of light moving in the gloomy space beyond. I would have given anything for the power to close the door. I fancied strange noises, and began to think of the people I had known who lay in the vaults just below me or in the graves about the church; and several times a heavy hand seemed to be laid upon my arm again, just in the spot where the man had first seized me. Once I could not persuade myself, but that I could hear a low deep tone from the organ; and again the supposed jingling of the bells annoyed me. So I sat listening intently when the whistling of the wind paused out of doors, and hearing and seeing all sorts of strange things, till the chimes went to the quarter after two.

Son after that I saw a little shining light moving about at the bottom of the church. It came nearer to me, and I heard footsteps. I had fancied so many things that I was not sure yet whether I was deceived again, but now I heard some one call—"Abraham Stedman! Abraham Stedman!" three times. It was the rector's voice, and I answered him; but he did not know where I was till I called to him to come to the vestry room. He held up his lamp and was much surprised to find me as I was. I related to him what had happened and he unbound me. He told me he had laid awake since midnight wondering to hear no bells ringing, and had grown uneasy; for he thought I could not have failed to keep my word, and he knew that I was in the church alone. So at last he had determined to come in search of me.

This affair made a great stir in Chorley. But we could get no clue to the parties, nor to their object in mutilating the register. They had taken out so many leaves that it was impossible to tell what particular entry they wished to destroy; but was a curious thing, that on examining the skeleton index, we found that although there were as many as thirty entries in those six leaves, every one of them began with three letters. This was a very small clue, and the marriages at that part were many years back, so that no one could ever tell what the names were. It was no wonder that we could get no trace of the two men. Before the next year came round the Chorley people had got something else to talk about; as no one came for a copy of the missing entries in the register, they began to forget about my adventure.

Eighteen months after the night which I was bound in the vestry room, old Mr. Godby sent for me one night, and told me he thought he might yet be able to trace the two strangers. He had got a copy of a London newspaper, in which there was an advertisement addressed to parish clerks, inquiring for the marriage register of a Mr. McLean, which took place about thirty years before. The initial of that name was one of three letters; but as the advertisement mentioned no place, that would seem a very small matter to go upon. But I had always thought that the entry which the two strangers had searched for was on the first of the leaves which they tore out, and that it was the other leaves underneath which were torn with it to put us off the scent. Now on the first page we found that there were two entries, both beginning with M.; which was something more. Besides, Mr. Godby reasoned that a register about which the parties interested were so uncertain was the very one, which any person knowing of its existence and having an interest in preventing its appearance, might endeavor to destroy. These three reasons seemed to him so good that he went up to London about it, and a day or so after he wrote to me to join him. We were soon upon the scent now; for Mr. Godby had ascertained who were the persons likely to be guilty, supposing that we were right in our conjecture, that the missing register concerned this family. When I saw one of them I recognized him immediately, although he had worn a mask in the church. I knew him by his appearance, but when he spoke I could swear that he was the man, and the officer accordingly arrested him. We got such evidence against him afterwards as clearly to prove him guilty. People were hung for such a crime then, and it was with great difficulty that he escaped with transportation. He confessed all about it afterwards, and said his companion had gone abroad since, he did not know whither; and I believe they never caught him. His motive—as you may suppose—was to defend children of a large property, by destroying the proofs of their legitimacy; by which he was benefited as the next kin of the deceased person; but the lawyers set all to rights again, in spite of the missing register.

ENDURANCE OF HEAT.—The senior of the Buffalo Democracy is an old iron manufacturer, and we observe that he frequently has an interesting article relative to the workers in coal and iron. In one of his last, he states some curious facts as to the capacity of different nations to endure heat, and how those who feed steam-boats fires in warm weather suffer.

It is remarkable that most of the cases of sun stroke reported, and the eastern papers are filled with them, are of Irish. They yield to the influence of our hot dry climate, sooner than any other European immigrant. Yet, certain kinds of heat stand better than Americans. In blast furnaces and rolling mills, the Irish will endure more hard and hot work than the Americans of Ohio, Virginia, and Kentucky, or Indiana. Yet it is of rare occurrence that an American dies of sun-stroke. The English and the Welsh endure hot work about fire, better than any other people. Sweating does not exhaust them, as it does a Yankee. They will do hard work in a blast furnace in the most scorching weather of our summers, better even than the negroes. This is the experience of iron masters in Virginia.

There is a business on our lakes that only Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego ought to have been put at; but which the Irish pretty much perform. It is firing up under the boilers of our great steamers. These are down below, in what is called the boiler room. The room is about as well ventilated as a bombshell—the vast heating surface of the boilers makes the atmosphere roasting hot; blowers driven by machinery fan the fires, and when the doors are opened for fresh coal, drive out with a rush flames, sparks, ash and dust, and the room-like Nebuchadnezzar's furnace gets seven times hotter than ever. The fireman crawls on deck for cool air; and there presents literally the spectacle of a man pumping out water from his shoes in his walk, which have filled with his own sweat, streaming down his limbs. The public may be curious to know how long Patrick and Michael stand this work. The poor fellows generally quit the moment the boat reaches her dock; frequently abandoning their hard earned wages. Fresh hands have to be hired every trip. There are no men in the world who can stand the business in the present weather. So severe is it, that we have heard of cases where the firemen had to be driven below to their work, with hand spades and the fist.

FIRE IN THE WOODS.—We have come recently from Potter county, and have passed through a portion of Alleghany county, in this state. The drought in that section is intense. No rain has fallen for weeks. Streams are dry, springs are dry, and the fields are parched and bare. Thousands and thousands of acres of woodland are on fire, and great destruction of property is taking place. The inhabitants are out fighting the fire, which slowly and resistlessly is moving on to further ruin, and threatening houses and barns. It sweeps over meadows with the speed of the wind, and it licks up the vegetation of forests, leaving the blackness of desolation in its path. By day high clouds of smoke fill the sky and at night the heavens are aglow with the blaze. The highways often pass between the fires on either side, and travelers are exposed to frequent danger. Fires also are raging in McKean and Warren counties, Penn., in the extensive lumber districts of that wild region. I sat listening intently when the whistling of the wind paused out of doors, and then I noticed something like little flakes of light moving in the gloomy space beyond. I would have given anything for the power to close the door. I fancied strange noises, and again the supposed jingling of the bells annoyed me. So I sat listening intently when the whistling of the wind paused out of doors, and hearing and seeing all sorts of strange things, till the chimes went to the quarter after two.

Son after that I saw a little shining light moving about at the bottom of the church. It came nearer to me, and I heard footsteps. I had fancied so many things that I was not sure yet whether I was deceived again, but now I heard some one call—"Abraham Stedman! Abraham Stedman!" three times. It was the rector's voice, and I answered him; but he did not know where I was till I called to him to come to the vestry room. He held up his lamp and was much surprised to find me as I was. I related to him what had happened and he unbound me. He told me he had laid awake since midnight wondering to hear no bells ringing, and had grown uneasy; for he thought I could not have failed to keep my word, and he knew that I was in the church alone. So at last he had determined to come in search of me.

DEATH OF AN OLD PIONEER.—Michael Dousman, the patriarch of Mackinaw died in this city yesterday afternoon, at the advanced age of 83. Mr. Dousman came here some days since on a visit to his children. He was taken sick on Thursday week, and for the first time in his life, within his recollection, was confined by illness to his bed. It was not supposed, however, that the attack was mortal; but yesterday afternoon he suddenly expired. His disease was an affection of the heart.

Mr. Dousman was one of the oldest pioneers of the north-west. He came to Mackinaw in 1791, and has resided there continuously for 63 years. By his prudence, industry and sagacity he had acquired a handsome estate. A wife and six children survive him; four of his sons being prominent citizens of this state.—Mil. Sent.

ELECTION IN ST. LOUIS.—By an examination of the St. Louis papers of the day preceding the election, we notice that the issues involved between Col. Benton and his opponents were anything but the Nebraska question. On that question, we believe that he would have triumphed. Mr. Polk, the "regular democratic" candidate, never had a ghost of a chance. The Independent and Republican, the whig papers, supported Mr. Kimmel, a very able and popular man, as a whig, opposed to the policy which had just vetoed the river and harbors bill, and as in favor of rechartering the Missouri bank, while Benton's opinions were of the hard-money sort. Besides these things, the Anzeiger, a radical German paper, was for Benton, and deemed with abuse of the "know nothings," who seem to have organized in strong force in St. Louis.

A new weekly paper, to be called the Cosmopolitan," independent in politics, is about to be issued in Milwaukee by J. Corbett & Co.

The Daily Gazette.

JANESVILLE : : : WISCONSIN.

MONDAY MORNING, AUG. 14, 1854.

For telegraphic news see third page.

ELECTION IN MISSOURI.—The full vote in Col. Benton's district is for Kenneth 6291, Benton 5220, Polk (Nebraska dem.) 244. The Nebraska issue does not seem to have been as fully presented as we supposed, and other questions determined the contest to a great extent. The friends of Col. B. made a hard push for the German vote, and thus arrayed against him the native American and "know nothing" influence. Still we regret the defeat of Col. Benton; he was fully committed against the Nebraska iniquity, and his successful competitor occupies at least an equivocal position upon it. The most that himself or his friends would concede was that he would consent to a restoration of the Missouri restriction, under certain extreme circumstances.

The election to congress of Messrs. Miller and Porter is claimed as pretty certain, and of Messrs. Oliver, Caruthers and Lindley (all whigs) as probable. If this be the result, the democrats elect but one representative, Mr. Johnson.

In the legislature, though the whigs have gained to some extent, its political complexion is yet uncertain.

The riot seems to be at an end. Ten persons were killed, and several of the wounded are not expected to recover.

The Rockford Republican (whig) contains a call signed by a large number of prominent citizens, and addressed to the electors of the first congressional district of Illinois, for a convention to assemble in Rockford on the 30th inst., irrespective of party, "to consult upon the great question now at issue, and to adopt such measures as shall be deemed most efficient for combining our efforts and energies at the approaching congressional and state elections, so as to prevent the still further extension of slavery, and to protect the great interests of free labor and free men from being sacrificed to the interest or ambition of trading politicians." The Republican endorses the movement and urges a full attendance at the convention. The district is now represented by Mr. Washburne, who voted eighty-three times in succession against the Nebraska bill during its contested passage in the thirty-six hour session of the house of representatives. What truer or better man can be selected to again represent the district?

We notice in the Janesville Gazette an article in defense of the last decision of the supreme court, signed "W.", which we take to be from the pen of our chief justice. We shall be happy to hear Justice Whitton reply through our columns to the article of J. H. Paine & Sons.—Free Democrat.

If the paragraph quoted by us Saturday from the Free Democrat, implying a lack of courage to the supreme court of this state did not furnish conclusive evidence that Mr. Booth wholly misapprehends the character of the court, nothing further is needed to prove that, he mistakes the character of Judge Whitton than to attribute to his pen a newspaper defense of his decision.

Judge Whitton did not write the article in question, and does not now know who was its author. We think we can assure Mr. Booth that he will wait a long time before Judge W. responds to his invitation to reply, through his columns, to the argument of the Messrs. Paine.

—By the way, the imputed authorship of the article in our paper is no mean compliment to the actual writer.

RAILROAD MAIL SERVICE.—We learn from Mr. Broadhead, superintendent of the M. & M. railroad, that the compensation offered by the P. O. department for mail service on that road, is as follows: Milton to Janesville, once a day, for six days in the week, $25 per mile—Milwaukee to Madison, twice a day for six days in the week, $50 per mile.—Mil. Sent.

The Sentinel does not state whether the offer of the department has been accepted by the company, and we should like to be informed by somebody why a mail is sent twice a day to Madison and only once to Janesville. This is a kind of "service" the propriety of which we don't see clearly.

A LONG BILL.—The post route bill, which was signed by the president at 10 o'clock on Thursday night, required for its enrolment one thousand sheets of parchment, costing $200! It is a recapitulation of all the existing post routes in the United States, to which some six or seven hundred new ones are added. The arrangement is alphabetical for the convenience of reference.

ILLINOIS STATE FAIR POSTPONED.—The executive committee of the state agricultural society, have in consequence of the prevalence of the cholera, postponed the fair of the society until the 3d of October next. It will commence at Springfield on the 4th, 5th and 6th days of said month.

AMERICAN EXPRESS OFFICE.—Janesville, May 21, 1853.

"The Wisconsin Home,"

A Miscellaneous and Reformatory Journal, will be printed on the first and fifteenth of each month from and after the

by Messrs. BAKER & DORR, publishers and proprietors of the Janesville Free Press; and edited by Wm. M. Dorr, of the above named firm.

Each No. of "The Wisconsin Home" will consist of EIGHT PAGES; making a sheet, in point of size, nearly the same as the "Scientific American." We shall reserve ONLY ONE COLUMN OF ADVERTISING for the purpose of publishing an occasional prospectus to the public; leaving THIRTY-ONE COLUMNS OF READING MATTER.

One or two good stories will appear in each No. but none so long as to interfere with the main and beneficial tendency. We shall admit to its columns a short summary of passing events will be given; but political grounds will be taken. As a better idea may be formed by seeing the article itself, the first No. will be furnished to all who may wish to examine it, FREE OF CHARGE.

The terms of "The Wisconsin Home" will be ONE DOLLAR PER YEAR, payable half yearly in advance, Subscription books now open.

Order solicited early, especially for sample numbers, in order that we may know how large an edition will supply the demand.

THE MARKETS.

JANESVILLE, MONDAY, Aug. 14.

But little grain is yet coming in, as farmers are still busy in securing their crops. The demand for home consumption is however good, and high prices are paid.

The opening prices for to-day are reported to us at 1,650; 10 for winter wheat, 900; 10 for

THE DAILY GAZETTE.

NEW RAILROAD ARRANGEMENT.—To-day the cars on the Madison and Beloit railroad commence running from Afton, (formerly Bass Creek,) within six miles of Janesville. The cars leave Afton at 6 o'clock A. M. and 1:30 P. M. By this arrangement we are informed passengers leaving Janesville at 5 A. M. by Davis & Moore's stage coaches, can reach Chicago in time for the noon train over the Michigan Central road, and arrive at Detroit the same evening in time to connect with steamboats to Buffalo. The fare from Janesville to Chicago is $3 00. We are also informed that arrangements are being made and will be soon announced, by which passengers will be ticketed from Janesville over the Beloit and Madison road to all points east of Chicago as cheap as by the route via Milwaukee.

A notice from the Monroe Sentinel of Holden, Kemp & Co. got separated in Saturday's paper from a couple of lines which were intended to introduce it. It will answer just as well if the purchaser will call on these dealers and have them "put up" the articles the Sentinel designed to command the public.

SHANGHAI.—Give us dorking or Mexican game for the spit—a bantam to crow—a turkey to roast, and guinea fowls for eggs, and we will give up all other fowl fancies to those who choose to indulge in them. "Cock-a-doodle-doo," was the good old fashioned smart crow of the roosters in the days of our boyhood—the insipid, "Come-and-fie-e-l-m-e-m-o-r-e," of the Shanghai, is doleful enough to announce the failure of a corn crib.

The negro was made for slavery, as the ox and the horse were made for servitude, and neither of them can be converted into a white man.—Washington Sentinel.

It may be impossible to convert a horse into a white man, but we think it now clearly demonstrated that a white man can make an ass of himself.

WORCESTER.—Aug. 12th.

A meeting of the stockholders of the Vermont Central railroad was held yesterday. The only business of moment that transpired was the appointment of a committee to select a new board of directors, which are to be voted for at the annual meeting of the 12th of September.

The case of the late president, who stands charged with heavy defalcations, is to be brought before the grand jury.

The board of health report the number of deals for the week ending to-day, 1040, of which 265 were from cholera.

CAMBRIDGE.—Aug. 12th.

The case of Porter, who has been on trial for some time, has been concluded. He was charged with violating the liquor law—fined $350 and imprisoned for four years. The accused has appealed from the decision, which is generally pronounced an unrighteous one.

BOSTON.—Aug. 12th.

The packet ship Star of Empire arrived this morning from Liverpool with 700 passengers, all in good health.

N. Y.—Aug. 12th.

The stock-holders of the Harlem railroad will report on Tuesday next. The New Haven committee are still closely occupied in the examination of their affairs. The examination goes back to the early steps of the enterprise.

The Star reports that the French minister has made a demand of $600,000 for property destroyed at Greytown.

NEW YORK.—Aug. 1

I was a little frightened as you may suppose; but I thought they were only thieves, who had followed me, and got into the church through my forgetting, in my flight about the tombstone, to fasten the church door; and, as I knew that there was very little in the vestry room, I was rather glad to think how they would be baffled. When they got a light I saw they had masks on. They were well dressed, and although they swore at me, it was evident they were not common burglars; I could tell that from their language. One laid a long shining pair of pistols on the baize that covered the table, out of my reach. I know that he did it to intimidate me; for he asked me immediately for my keys in a loud voice. It was no use my refusing them; I was quite helpless, and they had nothing to do but to take them out of my hands. I told them that the rector kept all the plate in his house, and that there was nothing, in any of the closets but a few bottles of wine, and some wax candles. The oldest man, I think, asked me then where the books were kept; but I would not tell him. I determined that, let them do what they might with me, I would keep to my determination not to tell them where the books were. They tried much to terrify me, with words at first, but finding that did not do, the elder one, who was the principal in everything, put his pistol to my ear, and declared he would ask me three times, and then at the third time, fire. Now I was in great terror at this, and never believed myself so near death as I did then; but I had made a kind of vow to myself, and being in a church, I thought a curse would be upon me if I yielded; so I held my tongue; and when he found I was firm, instead of firing he hung his pistols down upon the table again, and began silently to try all the locks he could find about the room with the keys he had taken from me. In this way he soon found the books he wanted in a fire proof safe.

And now both of them began to pore over the books by the light of the candle. They chose two with yellow covers, which I knew to be the marriage registers—the old one and the new one—containing all the marriages that had taken place at old Chorley church for seventy years back. I heard one ask the other if there was no index; for they did not understand our way of indexing, which was merely to write down all the letters of the alphabet, with the numbers of the pages at which names beginning with each letter could be found—taking the first letter from the bridegroom's name of course. So they had a long search, each of the turning over the leaves of one book and examining it page by page. I watched their faces, and tried to bear in mind at what part of the book they were, in case they should stop. The one that had the old book came to a place at last which seemed to contain what he was looking for. He showed it to his companion, and they conferred together for a moment in a whisper. Immediately after the older one tore out, I thought, some half dozen leaves. He was going to burn them in the flame of the candle at first; but his companion stayed him, and he tore them up and put them in his pockets. As soon as they had done this they turned hastily to depart, as if they were anxious to be gone now their business was done. The older one took some more cord from his pocket and bound me fast in the great vestry chair, drawing the cords round my wrists and ankles till I cried out with pain. Then threatening again to return and blow my brains out if they heard my voice, they went out down the aisle, leaving the vestry room door open. All this happened in little more than an hour; for the clock chimed the two quarters after midnight at very moment.

I sat there two hours alone; but it seemed to me so long; that if I had not heard every quarter chime, I should have expected to see the day dawn through the stained glass window. It was the dreariest two hours that ever I passed in my life. It was bitter cold, and sitting here helplessly in one position, my limbs grew frozen, and the cords seemed to get tighter and tighter, and stop the movement of my blood. It is no wonder I felt nervous after such a scene. Where I sat, with my back to the wall, I looked right into the church, and the door was left open. I could feel a cold wind rushing from it into the room; and, as I sat staring into the darkness, strange fancies troubled me. I saw dark shapes floating about, as I thought, and peeping at me from the sides of the doorway; and now, and then I noticed something like little flakes of light moving in the gloomy space beyond. I would have given anything for the power to close the door. I fancied strange noises, and began to think of the people I had known who lay in the vaults just below me or in the graves about the church; and several times a heavy hand seemed to be laid upon my arm again, just in the spot where the man had first seized me. Once I could not persuade myself, but that I could hear a low deep tone from the organ; and again the supposed jingling of the bells annoyed me. So I sat listening intently when the whistling of the wind paused out of doors, and hearing and seeing all sorts of strange things, till the chimes went to the quarter after two.

Son after that I saw a little shining light moving about at the bottom of the church. It came nearer to me, and I heard footsteps. I had heard so many things that I was not sure yet whether I was deceived again, but now I heard some one call—"Abraham Stedman! Abraham Stedman!" three times. It was the rector's voice, and I answered him; but he did not know where I was till I called to him to come to the vestry room. He held up his lamp and was much surprised to find me as I was. I related to him what had happened and he unbound me. He told me he had laid awake since midnight wondering to hear no bells ringing, and had grown uneasy; for he thought I could not have failed to keep my word, and he knew that I was in the church alone. So at last he had determined to come in search of me.

This affair made a great stir in Chorley. But we could get no clue to the parties, nor to their object in mutilating the register. They had taken out so many leaves that it was impossible to tell what particular entry they wished to destroy; but was a curious thing, that on examining the skeleton index, we found that although there were as many as thirty entries in those six leaves, every one of them began with three letters. This was a very small clue, and the marriages at that part were many years back, so that no one could ever tell what the names were. It was no wonder that we could get no trace of the two men. Before the next year came round the Chorley people had got something else to talk about; as no one came for a copy of the missing entries in the register, they began to forget about my adventure.

Eighteen months after the night which I was bound in the vestry room, old Mr. Godby sent for me one night, and told me he thought he might yet be able to trace the two strangers. He had got a copy of a London newspaper, in which there was an advertisement addressed to parish clerks, inquiring for the marriage register of a Mr. McLean, which took place about thirty years before. The initial of that name was one of three letters; but as the advertisement mentioned no place, that would seem a very small matter to go upon. But I had always thought that the entry which the two strangers had searched for was on the first of the leaves which they tore out, and that it was the other leaves underneath which were torn with it to put us off the scent. Now on the first page we found that there were two entries, both beginning with M.; which was something more. Besides, Mr. Godby reasoned that a register about which the parties interested were so uncertain was the very one, which any person knowing of its existence and having an interest in preventing its appearance, might endeavor to destroy. These three reasons seemed to him so good that he went up to London about it, and a day or so after he wrote to me to join him. We were soon upon the scent now; for Mr. Godby had ascertained who were the persons likely to be guilty, supposing that we were right in our conjecture, that the missing register concerned this family. When I saw one of them I recognized him immediately, although he had worn a mask in the church. I knew him by his appearance, but when he spoke I could swear that he was the man, and the officer accordingly arrested him. We got such evidence against him afterwards as clearly to prove him guilty. People were hung for such a crime then, and it was with great difficulty that he escaped with transportation. He confessed all about it afterwards, and said his companion had gone abroad since, he did not know whither; and I believe they never caught him. His motive—as you may suppose—was to defend children of a large property, by destroying the proofs of their legitimacy; by which he was benefited as the next kin of the deceased person; but the lawyers set all to rights again, in spite of the missing register.

ENDURANCE OF HEAT.—The senior of the Buffalo Democracy is an old iron manufacturer, and we observe that he frequently has an interesting article relative to the workers in coal and iron. In one of his last, he states some curious facts as to the capacity of different nations to endure heat, and how those who feed steam-boats fires in warm weather suffer.

It is remarkable that most of the cases of sun stroke reported, and the eastern papers are filled with them, are of Irish. They yield to the influence of our hot dry climate, sooner than any other European immigrant. Yet, certain kinds of heat stand better than Americans. In blast furnaces and rolling mills, the Irish will endure more hard and hot work than the Americans of Ohio, Virginia, and Kentucky, or Indiana. Yet it is of rare occurrence that an American dies of sun-stroke. The English and the Welsh endure hot work about fire, better than any other people. Sweating does not exhaust them, as it does a Yankee. They will do hard work in a blast furnace in the most scorching weather of our summers, better even than the negroes. This is the experience of iron masters in Virginia.

There is a business on our lakes that only Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego ought to have been put at; but which the Irish pretty much perform. It is firing up under the boilers of our great steamers. These are down below, in what is called the boiler room. The room is about as well ventilated as a bombshell—the vast heating surface of the boilers makes the atmosphere roasting hot; blowers driven by machinery fan the fires, and when the doors are opened for fresh coal, drive out with a rush flames, sparks, ash and dust, and the room-like Nebuchadnezzar's furnace gets seven times hotter than ever. The fireman crawls on deck for cool air; and there presents literally the spectacle of a man pumping out water from his shoes in his walk, which have filled with his own sweat, streaming down his limbs. The public may be curious to know how long Patrick and Michael stand this work. The poor fellows generally quit the moment the boat reaches her dock; frequently abandoning their hard earned wages. Fresh hands have to be hired every trip. There are no men in the world who can stand the business in the present weather. So severe is it, that we have heard of cases where the firemen had to be driven below to their work, with hand spades and the fist.

FIRE IN THE WOODS.—We have come recently from Potter county, and have passed through a portion of Alleghany county, in this state. The drought in that section is intense. No rain has fallen for weeks. Streams are dry, springs are dry, and the fields are parched and bare. Thousands and thousands of acres of woodland are on fire, and great destruction of property is taking place. The inhabitants are out fighting the fire, which slowly and resistlessly is moving on to further ruin, and threatening houses and barns. It sweeps over meadows with the speed of the wind, and it licks up the vegetation of forests, leaving the blackness of desolation in its path. By day high clouds of smoke fill the sky and at night the heavens are aglow with the blaze. The highways often pass between the fires on either side, and travelers are exposed to frequent danger. Fires also are raging in McKean and Warren counties, Penn., in the extensive lumber districts of that wild region. I sat listening intently when the whistling of the wind paused out of doors, and then I noticed something like little flakes of light moving in the gloomy space beyond. I would have given anything for the power to close the door. I fancied strange noises, and again the supposed jingling of the bells annoyed me. So I sat listening intently when the whistling of the wind paused out of doors, and hearing and seeing all sorts of strange things, till the chimes went to the quarter after two.

Son after that I saw a little shining light moving about at the bottom of the church. It came nearer to me, and I heard footsteps. I had heard so many things that I was not sure yet whether I was deceived again, but now I heard some one call—"Abraham Stedman! Abraham Stedman!" three times. It was the rector's voice, and I answered him; but he did not know where I was till I called to him to come to the vestry room. He held up his lamp and was much surprised to find me as I was. I related to him what had happened and he unbound me. He told me he had laid awake since midnight wondering to hear no bells ringing, and had grown uneasy; for he thought I could not have failed to keep my word, and he knew that I was in the church alone. So at last he had determined to come in search of me.

DEATH OF AN OLD PIONEER.—Michael Dousman, the patriarch of Mackinaw died in this city yesterday afternoon, at the advanced age of 83. Mr. Dousman came here some days since on a visit to his children. He was taken sick on Thursday week, and for the first time in his life, within his recollection, was confined by illness to his bed. It was not supposed, however, that the attack was mortal; but yesterday afternoon he suddenly expired. His disease was an affection of the heart.

Mr. Dousman was one of the oldest pioneers of the north-west. He came to Mackinaw in 1791, and has resided there continuously for 63 years. By his prudence, industry and sagacity he had acquired a handsome estate. A wife and six children survive him; four of his sons being prominent citizens of this state.—Mil. Sent.

ELECTION IN ST. LOUIS.—By an examination of the St. Louis papers of the day preceding the election, we notice that the issues involved between Col. Benton and his opponents were anything but the Nebraska question. On that question, we believe that he would have triumphed. Mr. Polk, the "regular democratic" candidate, never had a ghost of a chance. The Independent and Republican, the whig papers, supported Mr. Kimmel, a very able and popular man, as a whig, opposed to the policy which had just vetoed the river and harbors bill, and as in favor of rechartering the Missouri bank, while Benton's opinions were of the hard-money sort. Besides these things, the Anzeiger, a radical German paper, was for Benton, and deemed with abuse of the "know nothings," who seem to have organized in strong force in St. Louis.

EARLY IN THE FIELD.—The Milledgeville Recorder and the Edenton Press, Georgia papers, nominate Hon. Daniel S. Dickinson for the next Presidency. The Addison, (N. Y.) Democrat seconds the motion.

A new weekly paper, to be called the Cosmopolitan, independent in politics, is about to be issued in Milwaukee by J. Corbett & Co.

The Daily Gazette.

JANESVILLE : : : WISCONSIN.

MONDAY MORNING, AUG. 14, 1854.

For telegraphic news see third page.

ELECTION IN MISSOURI.—The full vote in Col. Benton's district is for Kennett 6291, Benton 5220, Polk (Nebraska dem.) 244. The Nebraska issue does not seem to have been as fully presented as we supposed, and other questions determined the contest to a great extent. The friends of Col. B. made a hard push for the German vote, and thus arrayed against him the native American and "know nothing" influence. Still we regret the defeat of Col. Benton; he was fully committed against the Nebraska iniquity, and his successful competitor occupies at least an equivocal position upon it. The most that himself or his friends would concede was that he would consent to a restoration of the Missouri restriction, under certain extreme circumstances.

The election to congress of Messrs. Miller and Porter is claimed as pretty certain, and of

Messrs. Oliver, Caruthers and Lindley (all whigs) as probable. If this be the result, the democrats elect but one representative, Mr. Johnson.

In the legislature, though the whigs have gained to some extent, its political complexion is yet uncertain.

The riot seems to be at an end. Ten persons were killed, and several of the wounded are not expected to recover.

The Rockford Republican (whig) contains a call signed by a large number of prominent citizens, and addressed to the electors of the first congressional district of Illinois, for a convention to assemble in Rockford on the 30th inst., irrespective of party, "to consult upon the great question now at issue, and to adopt such measures as shall be deemed most efficient for combining our efforts and energies at the approaching congressional and state elections, so as to prevent the still further extension of slavery, and to protect the great interests of free labor and free men from being sacrificed to the interest or ambition of trading politicians." The Republican endorses the movement and urges a full attendance at the convention. The district is now represented by Mr. Washburne, who voted eighty-three times in succession against the Nebraska bill during its contested passage in the thirty-six hour session of the house of representatives. What truer or better man can be selected to again represent the district?

We notice in the Janesville Gazette an article in defense of the last decision of the supreme court, signed "W.," which we take to be from the pen of our chief justice. We shall be happy to hear Justice Whitton reply through our columns to the article of J. H. Paine & Sons.—Free Democrat.

If the paragraph quoted by us Saturday from the Free Democrat, imputing a lack of courage to the supreme court of this state did not furnish conclusive evidence that Mr. Booth wholly misapprehends the character of the court, nothing further is needed to prove that, he mistakes the character of Judge Whitton than to attribute to his pen a newspaper defense of his decision.

Judge Whitton did not write the article in question, and does not now know who was its author. We think we can assure Mr. Booth that he will wait a long time before Judge W. responds to his invitation to reply, through his columns, to the argument of the Messrs. Paine.

—By the way, the imputed authorship of the article in our paper is no mean compliment to the actual writer.

RAILROAD MAIL SERVICE.—We learn from Mr. Broadhead, superintendent of the M. & M. railroad, that the compensation offered by the P. O. department for mail service on that road, is as follows: Milton to Janesville, once a day, for six days in the week, $25 per mile—Milwaukee to Madison, twice a day for six days in the week, $50 per mile.—Mil. Sent.

The Sentinel does not state whether the offer of the department has been accepted by the company, and we should like to be informed by somebody why a mail is sent twice a day to Madison and only once to Janesville. This is a kind of "service" the propriety of which we don't see clearly.

O. department for mail service on that road, is as follows: Milton to Janesville, once a day, for six days in the week, $25 per mile—Milwaukee to Madison, twice a day for six days in the week, $50 per mile.—*Mil. JUSTICE CRAWFORD'S OPINION.—The opinion of Justice Crawford, in which he dissents from the views entertained by a majority of the bench upon the fugitive slave law, is given upon our first page. It gives an able view of this side of the question, which is just now rather unpopular among us, and also affords a good opportunity for discussing the fugitive slave law.

ILLINOIS STATE FAIR POSTPONED.—The executive committee of the state agricultural society, have in consequence of the prevalence of the cholera, postponed the fair of the society until the 3d of October next. It will commence at Springfield on the 4th, 5th and 6th days of said month.

We mean what we say exactly: We can sell you

MORE GOODS FOR THE

Least amount of Money.

Than any other store in the county. For this reason we sell more Goods than any two stores in Janesville, and this year we intend to sell more than any three, consequently, we can sell just one-third cheaper, as our expenses are no more by selling much than they would be if we sold just one more than our neighbors.

Reduce the Price and Increase the Speed.

Is the order of the day, and in order to do so, we have purchased this spring larger than ever, and intend to sell at prices to astonish every body.

We buy Goods to SELL, and intend everybody shall understand this by our prices. We have purchased every thing by the Cord in the way of Merchandise.

Our Stock embraces every thing in the Goods line, kept in such a store as ours only, commencing with

[Concluded.]

I was a little frightened as you may suppose; but I thought they were only thieves, who had followed me, and got into the church through my forgetting, in my fright about the tombstone, to fasten the church door; and, as I knew that there was very little in the vestry room, I was rather glad to think how they would be baffled. When they got a light I saw they had masks on. They were well dressed, and although they swore at us, it was evident they were not common burglars; I could tell that from their language. One laid a long shining pair of pistols on the bier that covered the table, out of my reach. I knew that he did it to intimidate me; for he asked me immediately for my keys in a loud voice. It was no use my refusing them; I was quite helpless, and they had nothing to do but to take them out of my hands. I told them that the rector kept all the plate in his house, and that there was nothing in any of the closets but a few bottles of wine, and some wax candles. The oldest man, I think, asked me then where the books were kept; but I would not tell him. I determined that, let them do what they might with me, I would keep to my determination not to tell them where the books were. They tried much to terrify me, with words at first, but finding that did not do, the elder one, who was the principal in everything, put his pistol to my ear, and declared he would ask me three times, and then at the third time, fire. Now I was in great terror at this, and never believed myself so near death as I did then; but I had made a kind of vow to myself, and being in a church, I thought a curse would be upon me if I yielded; so I held my tongue; and when he found I was firm, instead of firing he flung his pistols down upon the table again, and began silently to try all the locks he could find about the room with the keys he had taken from me. In this way he soon found the books he wanted in a fire proof safe.

And now both of them began to pore over the books by the light of the candle. They chose two with yellow covers, which I knew to be the marriage registers—the old one and the new one—containing all the marriages that had taken place at old Chorley church for seventy years back. I heard one ask the other if there was no index; for they did not understand our way of indexing, which was merely to write down all the letters of the alphabet, with the numbers of the pages at which names beginning with each letter could be found—taking the first letter from the bridegroom's name of course. So they had a long search, each of them turning over the leaves of one book and examining it page by page. I watched their faces, and tried to bear in mind at what part of the book they were, in case they should stop. The one that had the old book came to a place at last which seemed to contain what he was looking for. He showed it to his companion, and they conferred together for a moment in a whisper. Immediately after the older one tore out, I thought, some half dozen leaves. He was going to burn them in the flame of the candle at first; but his companion stayed him, and he tore them up and put them in his pockets. As soon as they had done this they turned hastily to depart, as if they were anxious to be gone now their business was done. The older one took some more cord from his pocket and bound me fast in the great vestry chair, drawing the cords round my wrists and ankles till I cried out with pain. Then threatening again to return and blow my brains out if they heard my voice, they went out down the aisle, leaving the vestry room door open. All this happened in little more than an hour; for the clock chimed the two quarters after midnight at this very moment.

I sat there two hours alone; but it seemed to me so long, that if I had not heard every quarter chime, I should have expected to see the day dawn through the stained glass window. It was the dreariest two hours that ever I passed in my life. It was bitter cold, and sitting here helplessly in one position, my limbs grew frozen, and the cords seemed to get tighter and tighter, and stop the movement of my blood. It is no wonder I felt nervous after such a scene. Where I sat, with my back to the wall, I looked right into the church, and the door was left open, could feel a cold wind rushing from it into the room; and, as I sat staring into the darkness, strange fancies troubled me. I saw dark shapes floating about, as I thought, and peeping at me from the sides of the doorway; and now and then I noticed something like little flakes of light moving in the gloomy space beyond. I would have given anything for the power to close the door. I fancied strange noises, and began to think of the people I had known who lay in the vaults just below me or in the graves about the church, and several times heavy hand seemed to be laid upon my arm again, just in the spot where the man had first seized me. Once I could not persuade myself but that I could hear a low deep tone from the organ; and again the supposed jingling of the bells annoyed me. So I sat listening intently when the whistling of the wind paused out of doors, and hearing and seeing all sorts of strange things, till the chimes went to the quarter after two.

Son after that I saw a little shining light moving about at the bottom of the church. It came nearer to me, and I heard footsteps. I had fancied so many things that I was not sure yet whether I was deceived again, but now I heard some one call—"Abraham Stedman! Abraham Stedman!" three times. It was the rector's voice, and I answered him; but he did not know where I was till I called to him to come to the vestry room. He held up his lamp, and I related to him what had happened and he unbound me. He told me he had laid awake since midnight wondering to hear no bells ringing, and had grown uneasy; for he thought I could not have fled to keep my word, and he knew that I was in the church alone. So at last he had determined to come in search of me.

This affair made a great stir in Chorley. But we could get no clue to the parties, nor to their object in mutilating the register. They had taken out so many leaves that it was impossible to tell what particular entry they wished to destroy; but was a curious thing, that on examining the skeleton index, we found that although there were as many as thirty entries in those six leaves, every one of them began with three letters. This was a very small clue, and the marriages at that part were many years back, so that no one could ever tell what the names were. It was no wonder that we could get no trace of the two men. Before the next year came round the Chorley people had got something else to talk about; as no one came for a copy of the missing entries in the register, they began to forget about my adventure.

Eighteen months after the night which I was bound in the vestry room, old Mr. Godby sent for me one night, and told me he thought he might yet be able to trace the two strangers. He had got a copy of a London newspaper, in which there was an advertisement addressed to parish clerks, inquiring for the marriage register of a Mr. MacLean, which took place about thirty years before. The initials of that name was one of three letters; but as the advertisement mentioned no place, that would seem a very small matter to go upon. But I had always thought that the entry which the two stran-

ELECTION IN MISSOURI.—The full vote in Col.

Benton's district is for Kenneth S. Benton, 6291, Polk (Nebraska dem.) 214. The Nebraska issue does not seem to have been as fully presented as we supposed, and other questions determined the contest to a great extent. The friends of Col. B. made a hard push for the German vote, and thus arrayed against him the native American and "know nothing" influence. Still we regret the defeat of Col. Benton; he was fully committed against the Nebraska iniquity, and his successful competitor occupies at least an equivocal position upon it. The most that himself or his friends would concede was that he would consent to a restoration of the Missouri restriction, under certain extreme circumstances.

The election to congress of Messrs. Miller and Porter is claimed as pretty certain, and of Messrs. Oliver, Cartthers and Lindley (all whigs) as probable. If this be the result, the democrats elect but one representative, Mr. Johnson.

In the legislature, though the whigs have gained to some extent, its political complexion is yet uncertain.

The riot seems to be at an end. Ten persons were killed, and several of the wounded are not expected to recover.

EVIDENCE OF HEAT.—The senior of the Buffalo Democracy is an old iron manufacturer, and we observe that he frequently has an interesting article relative to the workers in coal and iron. In one of his last, he states some curious facts relative to the capacity of different nations to endure heat, and how those who feed steam-boats fires in warm weather, suffer.

It is remarkable that most of the cases of sun stroke reported, and the eastern papers are filled with them, are of Irish. They yield to the influence of our hot dry climate, sooner than any other European immigrant. Yet, certain kinds of heat they stand better than Americans. In blast furnaces and rolling mills, the Irish will endure more hard and hot work than the Americans of Ohio, Virginia, and Kentucky, or Indiana. Yet it is of rare occurrence that an American dies of sun-stroke. The English and the Welch endure hot work about fire, better than any other people. Sweating does not exhaust them, as it does a Yankee. They will do hard work in a blast furnace in the most sweltering weather of our summers, better even than the negroes. This is the experience of iron masters in Virginia.

There is a business on our lakes that only Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego ought to have been put at; but which the Irish pretty much perform. It is firing up under the boilers of our great steamers. These are down below, in what is called the boiler room. The room is about as well ventilated as a bombshell—the vast heating surface of the boilers makes the atmosphere resounding hot; blowers driven by machine fan the fires, and when the doors are opened for fresh coal, drive out with a rush, flames, sparks, ashes and dust, and the room like Nebuchadnezzar's furnace gets seven times hotter than ever. The fireman crawls on deck for cool air, and there presents literally the spectacle of a man pumping out water from his shoes in his walk, while having filled with his own sweat, streaming down his limbs. The public may be curious to know how long Patrick and Michael stand this work. The poor fellows generally quit the moment the boat reaches her dock; frequently abandoning their hard earned wages. Fresh hands have to be hired every trip. There are no men in the world who can stand the business in the present weather. So severe is it, that we have heard of cases where the firemen have had to be driven below to their work, with hand spikes and the fist.

FIRE IN THE WOODS.—We have come recently from Potter county, and have passed through a portion of Alleghany county, in this state. The drought in that section is intense. No rain has fallen for weeks. Streams are dry, springs are dry, and the fields are parched and sear. Thousands and thousands of acres of woodland are on fire, and great destruction of property is taking place. The inhabitants are out fighting the fire, which slowly and resistlessly is moving on to further ruin, and threatening houses and barns. It sweeps over meadows with the speed of the wind, and it lifts up the vegetation of forests, leaving the blackness of desolation in its path. By day bright clouds of smoke fill the sky and at night the heavens are aglow with the blaze. The highways often pass between the fires on either side, and travelers are exposed to frequent danger. Fires are also raging in McKean and Warren counties, Penn., in the extensive lumber districts of that wild region. The inhabitants are out fighting the fire, which slowly and resistlessly is moving on to further ruin, and threatening houses and barns. It sweeps over meadows with the speed of the wind, and it lifts up the vegetation of forests, leaving the blackness of desolation in its path. The south must grant these hereditary rights, or expect to have this law, obnoxious to the feelings and sentiments of the north, even with these amendments, become a dead letter. The sooner it is accomplished the better it will be for the peace of the whole country.

RAILROAD MAIL SERVICE.—We learn from Mr. Brodhead, superintendent of the M. & M. railroad, that the compensation offered by the P. O. department for mail service on that road, is as follows: Milton to Janesville, once a day, for six days in the week, $25 per mile—Milwaukee to Madison, twice a day for six days in the week, $50 per mile.—Mil. Sent.

The Sentinel does not state whether the offer of the department has been accepted by the company, and we should like to be informed by somebody why a mail is sent twice a day to Madison and only once to Janesville. This is a kind of "service" the propriety of which we do not see clearly.

THE MADISON ARGUS of the 10th says that Mr. Wright, the state superintendent, lies seriously ill at his home in Prairie du Chien. After having spent several weeks, since the adjournment of the legislature, in supervising the publication of the amended school law, with a vast amount of notes and forms, he returned home for a few days, previous to commencing a tour of the state upon the business of his office. He was there taken sick with fever, which has confined him to his bed till the present time.

NEW GOVERNOR OF NEBRASKA.—The president has tendered the appointment of governor of Nebraska to F. Burt, of S. C., a brother of Gen. A. Burt, a member of congress from that state. Nobody but a resident of a slave state can, of course, be appointed governor of a free territory by President Pierce.

THE ELECTION IN ST. LOUIS.—By an examination of the St. Louis papers of the day preceding the election, we notice that the issues made between Col. Benton and his opponents were anything but the Nebraska question. On that question, we believe that he would have triumphed. Mr. Polk, the "regular democratic" candidate, never had a ghost of a chance. The intelligent and Republican, the whig papers, supported Mr. Kent, a very able and popular man, as a whig, opposed to the policy which had just vetoed the river and harbor bill, and as in favor of rechartering the Missouri Bank, while Benton's opinions were of the hard-money sort. Besides these things, the Anzeiger, a radical German paper, was for Benton, and deemed with abuse of the "know nothings," who seem to have organized in strong force in St. Louis.

EARLY IN THE FIELD.—The Milledgeville Recorder and the Edenton Press, Georgia papers, nominate Hon. Daniel S. Dickinson for the next Presidency. The Addison, (N. Y.) Democrat seconds the motion.

A NEW WEEKLY PAPER.—A new weekly paper, to be called the "Cosmopolite," independent in politics, is about to be issued in Milwaukee by J. Corbett & Co.

THE MARKETS.

JANESVILLE, MONDAY, AUG. 14.

But little grain is yet coming in, as farmers are still busy in securing their crops. The demand for home consumption is however good, and high prices are paid. The opening price for to-day are reported to us at 1,650, $10 for winter wheat, 900, $10 for Canada club, 800, $8 for common spring. Flour, 7,000, $8 per barrel, 800, $8 for common spring. Barley, 400, $8; Rye 600, $8; Oats 2,500, $6; Corn shelled, 400; Wool (little offering) 20c.

These prices are not likely to be long maintained, without an advance in the foreign market.

MILWAUKEE SATURDAY, AUG. 12.—The Sentinel reports receipt of new grain better yesterday. Some 5 or 600 bushels of wheat were brought into market. A lot of inferior club spring at depot brought 1,125, and there were sales from wagons at 950, $10. Several loads of good white winter brought 1,20 and we heard of a lot of 600 bushels, do, contracted to be delivered in two weeks at 1,25.

Oats, not so active, and lower,—we quote at 23, $10. Corn—dull at 47c.

BARLEY.—We learn that the barley crop in many sections has not been secured in good order, much of it being stained. Offers are made for good sound brewing qualities at 50c, but buyers have not sufficient confidence to go largely into purchases for future delivery, so it is ascertained that a larger breadth of ground than usual has been sown in New York and Ohio.

CINCINNATI, FRIDAY, AUG. 11.—The Tribune says: Market moderately active today, with considerable advance on wheat. New winter active on an indefinite upward tendency, principally on account of the failure of corn in the southern and south-western countries. High prices are asked and obtained for any quantities. Spring and winter of old crop have experienced a proportionate advance. Corn active, with light receipts and larger shipments. Oats quiet and unchanged—frights dull at old rates.

Flour, 7,500, $9; Wheat 1,250, $10 Corn 50, $1; Oats 29,000, $6; Rye 60.

THE DAILY GAZETTE.

NEW RAILROAD ARRANGEMENT.—To-day the cars on the Madison and Beloit railroad commence running from Afton, (formerly Bass Crock,) within six miles of Janesville. The cars leave Afton at 6 o'clock A. M. and 1:30 P. M. By this arrangement we are informed passengers leaving Janesville at 8 A. M. by Davis & Moore's stage coaches, can reach Chicago in time for the noon train over the Michigan Central road, and arrive at Detroit the same evening in time to connect with steamboats to Buffalo. The fare from Janesville to Chicago is $3.00. We are also informed that arrangements are being made and will be soon announced, by which passengers will be ticketed from Janesville over the Beloit and Madison road to all points east of Chicago as cheap as by the route via Milwaukee.

A notice from the Monroe Sentinel of Holden, Kemp & Co., got separated in Saturday's paper from a couple of lines which were intended to introduce it. It will answer just as well if the purchaser will call on these dealers and have them "put up" the articles the Sentinel designed to command to the public.

SHANGHAI.—Give us dorking or Mexican game for the spit—a bantam to crow—a turkey to roast, and guinea fowls for eggs, and we will give up all other foul fancies to those who choose to indulge in them. "Cock-a-doodle-doo," was the good old fashioned smart crow of the roosters in the days of our boyhood—the insipid portable, "Come-and-f-e-c-d-m-e-m-o-r-e," of the Shanghai, is doleful enough to announce the funeral of a corn crib.

The negro was made for slavery, as the ox and the horse were made for servitude, and neither of them can be converted into a white man. —Washington Sentinel.

It may be impossible to convert a horse into a white man, but we think it now clearly demonstrated that a white man can make an ass of himself.

KLIEBER'S ROCK OIL

FROM a Well 400 feet deep, near Pittsburgh,

Pa., is offered to the public as a Natural Medicine of no common value. It is a different thing from the old Kentucky or American Oil, as this is known INTERNALLY as well as externally. As a local remedy in Paralysis, Piles, Rheumatism, Diseases, Loss of Sight, Burns, &c., also, as valuable Internal Remedy for Piles, Ague, Scrofula, Coughs, Diarrhea, Erysipelas, old Sores, Erption of the Skin, Severe Diseases, Worms, Bladder and Kidney, &c., &c., &c. It invites the investigation of Physicians, as well as the suffering patient, to become acquainted with its merits.

Discovered in 1849, it has within 2 or 3 years, made multitudes of cures, and multitudes of friends—and as soon as tried the Sales not only increase but hold out.

Testimony to the great merit is constantly accumulating in the hands of the proprietor by certificates, letters, and articles in the papers.

IT DOCTORS THE WHOLE MAN—flesh and Blood—skin and bones—from head to foot—how it acts upon the system—cures of different manifestations, we cannot fully tell. While it is both cathartic and astringent, it is Alternative—and mind you, REGULATORY. A leading principle in it is Nitrope. When you once have it in the family you will not be without it.

It is a safe and certain Remedy, which might not boast to supersede this or that of NATURAL—make room for Human Invention. Price 50 cents per bottle. It can be had of wholesale at the large cities and towns in the West at Proprietor's prices.

HAVE WE ADOKE AMONG US?—Athen spoonful

every three hours in the absence of the fever will cure you of Ague or Diarrhea. EXP! Physicians, Druggists, and apothecaries, do well to recommend this Oil. PHILIPUS LITERUS, our Agent, will take the usual dose 2 or 3 times a day, and bathe the lower part of the back with it. Have you SCROFULA? The Petroleum will eradicate it, root and branch, at little cost or inconvenience. Get circulars of directions for adults and children, gratis of the agents. A trial is all we ask. Mind and get the right kind. It is of a beautiful golden color, try it for yourself.
